20 Children Withdrawn

Nashville Cops Escort Negroes Through Crowd

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Police escorted Negro pupils through lines of threatening whites at Glenn Grammar School in northeast Nashville today as city schools opened with white and Negro first graders going to integrated classes for the first time in this Southern city.

White parents withdrew about 20 of their children from the school.

The whites, with prosegregationists maintaining picket lines before the school, tried to block entry of the Negro pupils and their parents.

The irate white parents surrounded police standing guard at the school and there was a heated exchange.

Angry shouts went up from the crowd of about 200 whites as police escorted the Negroes into the school.

There were such shouts as "You're putting out the red carpet for them" and "You are backing the colored and not taking up for the whites."

Three Negro children registered at the Glenn school last Tuesday to attend the classes which started today. They were among 13 Negro children registered at five previously all-white Nashville grammar schools.

There were spasmodic disturbances at the other four schools where the Negro first graders were enrolled but these were minor in nature.

The Glenn gathering finally quieted down when Asst. Police Chief Frank M. Muller stepped in and took charge.

School officials had expressed determination to peacefully effect Nashville's first small step toward integration. They had the backing of 110 policemen.

Mrs. Alberta Young was among the first white women to shoulder her way through the crowd, enter the school and emerge dramatically a few moments later with her son, John Dale Young, 8.

Then followed a long line of grim-faced parents who began going in and coming out with their youngsters.

4 Negroes Enter

At midmorning children still were being withdrawn, but it had slowed down considerably. Glenn school has an enrollment of 73 first graders.

Mrs. Young told a newsman: "We told the teachers that when the colored came out, we'll all go back in."

At Fehr school four Negro first graders showed up and entered through a jeering crowd of about 200 whites and prosegregationist pickets.

Three others entered Buena Vista School, without incident. At Buena Vista as well as others, there was a liberal sprinkling of whites waving the Confederate flag.

Hope For Peace

By midmorning 16 Negro first graders had entered six of the city's grammar Schools. These included some of the 13 who had registered in advance and some who had not. There were a total of 126 Negroes eligible to enter desegregated schools but parents of

School Supt. Backtracks, Bars Mixing

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Shouting white students grabbed six Negro youths who tried to enter North Little Rock High School today and shoved them off the campus despite the efforts of the superintendent to escort them into the building.

It was the first actual physical clash between whites and Negroes and marked a new front of tension in the worsening race situation in the Little Rock area.

Fists Doubled

North Little Rock is an adjacent municipality of 50,000 just across the Arkansas River from here. The new school term started today, a week later than in Little Rock.

The six Negro boys advanced toward the front entrance of the school where they were met by a group of white boys with fists doubled. The whites hustled the Negroes away from the school. The Negro boys were not hurt.

F. B. Wright, the school superintendent, came to the scene and gestured for the Negroes to follow him inside. Again the Negro boys started toward the school but a reinforced line of whites, including the father of a white girl student who identified himself as L.E. Stroud, repulsed the second attempt. Stroud shouted "They shall not pass."

At Little Rock's Central High School a crowd of about 500 gathered before school time to see if Negroes would attempt again to cross the line of National Guardsmen still stationed there with orders to refuse them admittance. No Negroes came. The crowd found two newsmen to badger with jeers and insults.

No Change

Dr. Benjamin Fine, education editor of the New York Times; and William Hines of the Washington Star were baited by the crowd. One woman excitedly pointed to Hines and said, "That's the man who made Gov. Faubus look like a fool last night." Hines was one of the reporters who interviewed Faubus on a national telecast last night.

The Washington reporter stood silent.

Three Jailed For Assault

Three Ouachita men are being jailed in the parish jail on charges of aggravated rape of a 15-year-old girl late yesterday. The three were arrested shortly after noon in West Monroe by the parish sheriff department and West Monroe Police.

Non-Bondable

Aggravated rape is a non-bondable offense and the three must remain in the parish jail until action by either the district attorney or the parish grand jury.

Sheriff Grant gave the following account, which was given his department by the girl:

The girl had been dating Anderson for several weeks. Anderson went by the girl's house shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday and picked her up, telling her they were going riding. When he had driven but a short distance, he saw two men walking and decided to pick them up. (At the time, Anderson reportedly told the girl he did not know them, although he had borrowed and was in Robertson's automobile.)

'Dove Hunting'

After he picked up the two other men, they drove to the Prairie road, south of Monroe, where each of the men allegedly assaulted the juvenile. The men allegedly were "dove hunting" when the assaults occurred.

The girl told officers shotguns were in the automobile at the time she was attacked.

None of the men had made any statement up to noon today, Sheriff Grant said.

The charge of aggravated rape if carried to a conviction could carry a death penalty under the Louisiana statutes. Persons charged with the offense are not allowed to make bond.

Blanket Weather Is Back Again

A chilly 58 degrees last night sent area residents pulling on the covers, reminding us that fall is just around the corner.

Brisk temperatures of 82 to 87 are expected today with the mercury standing at 71 at mid-morning. The mercury will range between 60 to 64 tonight, climbing to 80 to 85 tomorrow.

Widely scattered thundershowers are forecast for this afternoon and tomorrow.

Faubus Insists On State Rights

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)— If the federal government moves into Arkansas by force or in any other manner to limit the power of the governor "We will have lost our last right of local selfgovernment," Gov. Orval Faubus said today.

The governor drew a sharp line between states rights and federal authority which he is challenging in the Little Rock integration case.

"If blood is then shed, my conscience will be clear, but I will weep for my people," the governor said in a speech prepared for use on television.

He said that given the opportunity "We can accomplish an orderly and nonviolent integration of our public schools in this state."

The governor also said U.S. Dist. Judge Ronald Davies of North Dakota has appeared "high-handed and arbitrary" in dealing with the Little Rock integration problem.

He blasted Little Rock Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann, who has become the governor's chief antagonist, as a "discredited, repudiated city official" who will leave office soon.

Faubus said he wanted to review the actions of the North Dakota judge "who arrived here only a few days ago. He has had three hearings on this matter. One hour and 24 minutes was the total time consumed in all three hearings, on a matter so important—a matter in which the peace and good order of the community is involved, as well as the lives and property of its citizens."

Ike Inks Civil Rights Bill At Newport

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President Eisenhower today signed into law the history-making civil rights bill empowering the federal government to enforce the right to vote with court injunctions.

The President put his signature to the bill—the first such legislation in 30 years—at his desk at his vacation headquarters here at 8:10 a.m.

Eisenhower's action came against the background of the school integration crisis in Little Rock, Ark. but the measure—primarily a right-to-vote bill—has no direct bearing on that dispute.

Historic Struggle

It would repeal a post-Civil War era law authorizing the President to use troops to enforce court orders in civil rights cases. But administration officials obviously feel Eisenhower has other powers.

The President instructed aides to keep him posted on any developments in the integration case.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, told a news conference there the Justice Department plans to submit to U.S. Dist. Judge Ronald Davies in Little Rock the report he asked on the integration crisis there. Hagerty said the report would be handed to Davies later in the day.

The civil rights bill was passed by Congress a day before it adjourned Aug. 30, after the historic struggle lasting through the 1957

Jordanians Greet First Shipments Of U. S. Arms

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The first U. S. arms were flown here today to begin a Middle East buildup against any threat from pro Soviet Syria.

Jordanian officials and other dignitaries were on hand to greet the convoy of eight Globemasters and Flying Boxcars bringing recoilless rifles, jeeps, machine guns and ammunition.

Charge Plot

Both Moscow and Syria charged that the United States was plotting an attack on Syria, next door to Jordan.

In Cairo, the morning newspaper El Shaab accused the United States of planning to blow up Western-owned oil pipelines in Syria to provide an excuse for an armed attack on that country.

Vital Interest

"The new American scheme is to instigate certain Syrian reactionary elements to blow up oil pipelines running across Syrian territory," Al Shaab said. "This would afford a pretext to Iraq to launch an armed attack on Syria on a plea of protecting its vital oil interests.

"In the event of Iraq being reluctant to do so, America herself would interfere, in which case she will have to do so in collusion with Israel."

The paper added that Britain opposed the plan while Iraq, Turkey and Lebanon were reluctant to participate. Al Shaab said Jordan and Israel were willing to join the scheme.

The arms, flown from U.S. depots in Europe, are part of a 10-million-dollar military aid program to Jordan announced last spring.

President Eisenhower ordered a speedup of arms deliveries after leftist officers took over the Syrian armed forces in mid-August.

The arms are intended to counterbalance weapons the Soviet Union has been pouring into Syria.

Other pro-Western countries surrounding Syria are also receiving U.S. arms. Surface shipments are being made to Turkey, Iraq and Lebanon.

President Eisenhower said Saturday he hoped any possible Communist infiltration of Syria would not push Syria to aggression.

New Proof

Jordanian officials had no official comment on the statement.

But in Damascus Syrian officials followed the line expressed in one newspaper that "this statement is new proof that the United States is looking for a pretext to launch aggression against Syria."

"It also proves," the daily Al-rai Alaam said, "that America aims at engineering some incidents on Syria's border to justify an anti-Syria action under the Eisenhower Doctrine on the grounds that Syria threatens the security of her pro-West neighbors."

'Exalted Cyclops'

Mutilation Of Negro Klan Test

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —The sex mutilation of a 33-year-old Negro last week was done to prove a klansman "worthy of becoming assistant exalted cyclops," investigating officers said today.

Five white men have been charged with mayhem in the case, a sixth man is being sought.

State investigator Ben Allan and Dep. Sheriff Tom Ellison said the mutilation of Judge Aaron, picked up by a chance as six men wanted "just any Negro man" followed a meeting of an unchartered Ku Klux Klan group.

Not Acted Upon

The two officers said the mutilation was planned to "send Shuttlesworth a message as to what would happen to a Negro sending his child to a white school."

The Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth has been the spokesman for a group of Negro parents seeking to enter eight children in white schools in Birmingham this term. Their applications for admission have not been acted upon.

Ellison said B. A. Floyd, 31, one of the men arrested, was slated for promotion to assistant exalted cyclops. In most KKK organizations, the cyclops is the chief executive of an individual unit.

The officer said Floyd had declined to make a statement. Ellison quoted two of the other arrested men as saying Floyd performed the actual operation "to prove himself" on orders of the cyclops.

Charges Dismissed

Aaron, unmarried and with no children, still is in serious condition in the Birmingham Veterans Hospital. He was seized as he walked along a road with a Negro woman.

Floyd was arrested yesterday. His bond was fixed at $5,000 on the mayhem charge.

Ellison said charges against another man arrested last night were dismissed when it was discovered he was the wrong man.

Arrested earlier were Jesse W. Mabry, 43; Joe Pritchett, 31; William J. Miller, 28; and J. N. Griffin, 38.

Mabry was convicted earlier of disorderly conduct stemming from the attack on Negro singer Nat (King) Cole here in April 1956.

Judge To Sign Order Mixing Dallas Schools

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Federal Judge William H. Atwell said today he would sign an order prepared by attorneys representing Negroes to end segregation in Dallas public schools after the Christmas holidays.

The order was one of two submitted at a special hearing today. The other order was submitted by Andrew J. Thuss, attorney for the Dallas Independent School District.

Judge Atwell in effect refused to accept the order submitted by Thuss because it did not specify a specific date for integration.

However, the order submitted by the Negro attorney did specify a date and was accepted with exception of its last paragraph which the judge ruled was not pertinent.

Judge Atwell told attorneys for the Negroes to retype their order and present it to him during the day.

U. Simpson Tate, attorney for the Negroes, declined to discuss details of the order he had drawn.

He said that it followed the mandate of the U.S. Supreme Court issued July 23, 1957.

Judge Atwell said he had received a copy of this mandate only today. The mandate, which he read in court, restrained and enjoined the school board from requiring segregation of any school of the district. It also allows time for the school board to arrange assignment of students.

Issues Denial

Speculate Adlai Eyes Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some influential Democrats are speculating that Adlai E. Stevenson may be working himself into a receptive mood toward a third presidential nomination.

Stevenson said last December, after his second defeat by President Eisenhower, "I will not run again for the presidency." He did not embellish this statement.

Might Be Drafted

There is every evidence that at the time Stevenson meant exactly what he said. There is no concrete evidence he has changed his mind since.

He said again yesterday he will not be a candidate in 1960. And he added, under questioning in a television interview, that a suggestion he might be drafted is "preposterous."

But a prominent Democratic senator who was active in Stevenson's 1956 campaign said he has become convinced that unless some other Democrat develops unexpected strength, Stevenson is likely to become available again.

The senator, who asked that his name not be used, mentioned Stevenson's recent six-week tour of Europe and Africa. He said he regards that tour as one of the signs the former candidate is keeping himself abreast of world developments to be ready for anything that might happen in the future.

Running Mate

"He isn't going abroad just because he likes to travel," this senator commented.

Some other Democrats with the same idea noted that Stevenson had changed his mind in 1952, when he said before the Democratic National Convention he couldn't accept any nomination other than that for re-election as Sen. Estes Kefauver (D Tenn), Stevenson's running mate in 1956, obviously is accepting at its face value Stevenson's statement that he will not run again. The sena-

Hurricane Carrie Builds Up As Debbie Spills Rain

MIAMI (UP) — Hurricane Carrie, a potential killer storm with 150-mile-an-hour winds, continued to build up far out in the Atlantic today as its sister storm Debbie sloshed rain squalls over the Carolinas and Virginia.

Carrie—by far the biggest tropical storm of the season—churned steadily on a west-northwest course, some 2,100 miles southeast of Miami, but posed no immediate threat to any land points.

Weak Sister

The San Juan weather bureau reported this morning that the increase in size but not in intensity during the next 12 hours.

At 5 a.m. EST Carrie was located at Latitude 18.3 north, Longitude 47.9 west, moving westnorthwest at 10 miles per hour.

Meanwhile, Debbie, Carrie's weak sister, was dissipating itself on the eastern slope of the Carolina-Virginia mountains. Debbie had lost the 60-mile an hour punch it hurled briefly against the Florida Gulf Coast Sunday and squalls.

The San Juan weather bureau was pretty much reduced to rain reported that Carrie was a "very dangerous hurricane" and cau-

RICHARD FECTEAU

Prisoner Of Reds Claims CIA Status

LONDON (AP)—A U.S. civilian imprisoned in Communist China on spy charges has been quoted by visiting Americans as saying he worked for the Central Intelligence Agency.

The British news agency Reuters reported in a Peiping dispatch yesterday that five U.S. students said the statement was made to them in a Peiping prison visit with Richard Fecteau, 30, of Lynn, Mass.

A spokesman for the CIA in Washington refused to comment. The prisoner's mother Mrs. Philip D. Fecteau has denied that he worked for the CIA.

Fecteau and John Downey, 27, of New Britain, Conn., both civilian employes of the Army, disappeared on a flight from Korea to Japan in 1952. The Communists repeatedly have accused them of working for the CIA.

Joint Statement

Fecteau was sentenced to 20 years and Downey to life imprisonment. The Communists asserted they were shot down over Manchuria while dropping supplies to agents there. The United States has denied this.

Reuters said separate groups from the 41 young Americans on an unauthorized tour of Red China visited for 30 minutes each with Fecteau and Downey yesterday. The 10 visitors—five to each prisoner—later drew up a joint statement about the interviews.

The statement was released after a 17-hour delay, officially attributed to "difficulties in mimeographing."

The visitors were required to agree before visiting the prison that they would not ask Fecteau and Downey any questions about their trial or charges against them. They were forbidden to take notes.

Hundreds Flee

California Fires 'Very Critical'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Forestry officials today foresaw no letup in the "very critical" weather situation that sparked about 75 forest and bruse fires throughout tinder-dry California over the weekend.

With some still raging unchecked, the fires:

1. Forced hundreds of vacationers to flee summer homes in the timbered Greenhorn Mountain area of Sequoia National Forest, 50 miles northeast of Bakersfield.

2. Caused a two-hour closure last night of transcontinental U.S. 50 in mountainous El Dorado County when flames approached the roadway near the gold mining town of Placerville. One firefighter was seriously burned.

2,000 Fighting

3. Threatened a Nike guided missile base on Mt. Gleason 20 airline miles north of Los Angeles.

More than 2,000 fire fighters were thrown into the fighting against the various blazes—large and small—which flared through out the state.

Brough under control late last night was the biggest single fire—one that blackened 11,000 acres of uninhabited timber and brush land in the northern Sierra, 15 miles northeast of Marysville in Yuba County.

Bad All Over

Elsewhere, new fires were fanning out uncontrolled. A new blaze in the Angeles National Forest last night destroyed about 400 acres of valuable watershed in San Gabriel Canyon.

Wind shifted the stubborn fire that menaced the Mt. Gleason Nike base in the Angeles National Forest. The untamed fire spread out over about 5,000 acres in less than three hours.

Sterling Damgaard, dispatcher of state forestry crews, said a long-range weather forecast indicated no relief in sight for the hot, dry climate that has engulfed the whole state.

"It's bad all over," he said.

First Step Agreement

Stassen Clings To Disarm Hopes

WASHINGTON UP — Harold E. Stassen, U. S. disarmament negotiator, insisted today that a first step disarmament agreement eventually will be reached because of the dangers of nuclear war.

Returning to Washington from the unsuccessful talks in London, Stassen said the next move is up to Russia.

"If the Russians would express willingness to stop production of fissionable material for weapons uses," he said, "then I believe we could move on to a first step agreement on disarmament."

Stassen emphasized that the break-up of the London talks was "a matter of a recess, not a collapse."

"It is a matter of an interval, not a breakoff," he said.

"I believe the day will come when we will reach agreement on a first-step disarmament plan. The nations of the world know nuclear war would be a great loss for everyone."

He returned to report to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on failure of the five-nation United Nations subcommittee to work out a first step agreement. The subcommittee, he said, will now report to the 12-nation disarmament commission at the United Nations.

Stassen was reported unhappy with some aspects of the administration's position on the now-exploded London negotiations with Britain, France, Canada and Russia. For one thing he apparently felt the complicated plan he was compelled to present piecemeal made it almost certain Russia would reject the proposal.

Daily Worker Editor Severs Ties With Reds

NEW YORK (UP)—The foreign editor of the Daily Worker today severed his Red ties because of the U.S. Communist Party's subservience to Soviet foreign policy.

Joseph Clark, 43, a Communist for 28 years, announced his resignation in a letter in the Daily Worker, the Communist organ in the United States. The letter of resignation, the first ever published in the Worker, was a frank, illuminating report on the present state of the American Communist Party.

While professing faith in Socialism and Marxism, Clark openly admitted disillusionment with the American Communist Party.

The American branch of the party, he said, had failed to face American reality "as it is today." Consequently, he said, "the party has become a hindrance rather than a means for advancing Socialism."

His disillusionment, Clark indicated, was based primarily on the refusal of American Communists to take an independent position, rather than always agree with Soviet policy. He leveled renewed criticism against Communist Party Leader Nikita Khrushchev and Vyacheisav M. Molotov, both of whom he said were responsible "for the crimes of Stalin."

"...One cannot have an independent stance or a scrupulous regard for the truth, and support the 'unity' of the Soviet Communist Party behind Khrushchev, as the Daily Worker did editorially," Clark said.

Clark, who won the Silver Star for gallantry in action as a U.S. infantryman during World War II, long has espoused a policy of independent for American Communists. These views have brought him rebuffs from the Kremlin, which has charged Clark with trying to set up "national Communism" in the United States.

To Distribute Hungary Report Inside Russia

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A Russian anti-Communist fighting group announced today it is ready to distribute the U. N. special report on Hungary inside the Soviet Union and her satellites.

The National Alliance of Russian Solidarists, in a cable to U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, said it was prepared to use its means of distribution to make the report public behind the Iron Curtain.

NTS, one of the most active Russian anti-Communist groups in the West, claims to have scores of agents inside Russia and other East European countries.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP) — Both St. Louis newspapers, the Morning Globe-Democrat and the evening Post-Dispatch, resumed publication with settlement of a strike that had forced suspension of Sunday editions.

Sunday night, 22 electricians employed by the papers ended a strike which began at 5 a. m. Saturday, and signed a new contract calling for a wage increase.

Their picket lines had kept craft unions and members of the American Newspaper Guild from entering the Post and Globe and put station KSD—TV, the Post's television outlet, off the air from Friday night until 6:49 p.m. Sunday.

816,000 Bales

Government Ups Cotton Estimate

WASHINGTON (UP)— The Agriculture Department today estimated a 12,713,000 bale cotton crop will be produced this year, up 816,000 bales from last month's forecast.

Today's estimate, based on Sept. 1 crop conditions, compares with output last year of 13,310,000 bales of cotton and 10-year average production of 13,569,000 bales.

This year's prospective crop, added to a carryover of about 11,400,000 bales, will meet consumption demands, both foreign and domestic, for about two years.

The Crop Reporting Board estimated cotton yields this year will average 446 pounds of lint an acre, compared with last year's 409 pounds and a 10-year average of 300 pounds.

The board said condition of this year's crop on Sept. 1 was 81 per cent of normal, compared with 81 per cent on Aug. 1, 75 per cent on Sept. 1, 1956, and a 10-year average of 73 per cent.

Following is estimate cotton production in bales, for southwest producing states compared with Aug. 1 estimates and 1956 production:

Missouri 250,000, 245,000, 448,000.

Arkansas 1,285,000 1,120,000, 1,426,000.

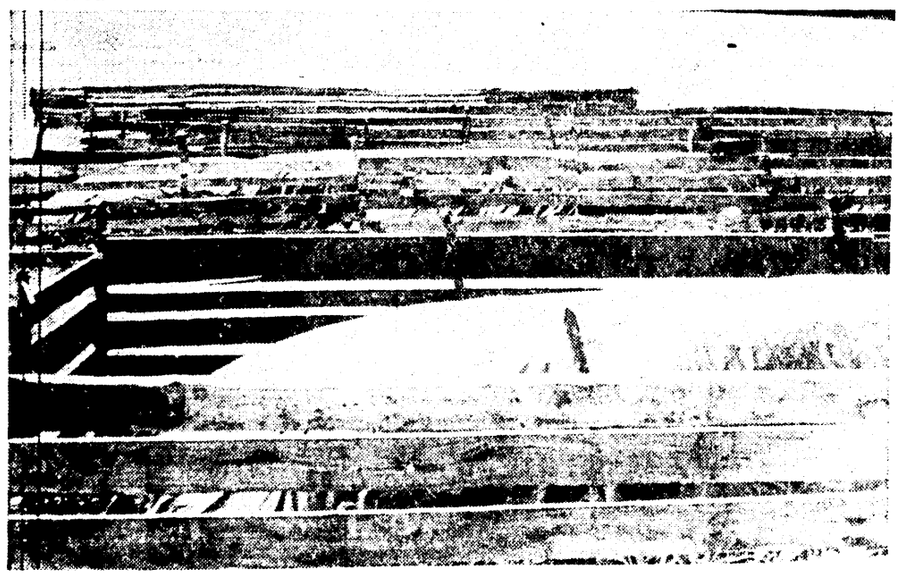
PACKING—Farm hand "walks" the corn pile to settle the fodder before it is covered on the Franklin farm near Rayville. (Farm Front photo)



READY FOR USE—Tons and tons of fresh cut corn covered and fenced in are in readiness awaiting winter feeding of dairy and beef cattle on the farm. (Farm Front photo)

Richland Planter Uses New Method For Storage

A new system of storage for silage that was developed by the Dairy Experimental Laboratories of Purdue University has been recently put into practice on the George B. Franklin farm near Holly Ridge.

The system is relatively simple: cu. and store the winter feed in nearby pastures where it can be fed to the animals with little or no work after being put up.

In regular storage of fodder, a silo has to be filled and treated and when it is time to use the feed, it has to be carried to the cattle. This new method does away with this extra work as the feed is always near the cattle.

The silage, corn in this case, is cut and hauled to the pasture site and dumped in piles 100 feet long, 12 feet wide and about six to eight feet high. Men walk the pile to settle the corn and when the pile is at the proper height, it is covered with the polyethylene plastic cover.

A trench is dug around the base of the pile about six inches wide and eight inches deep. The huge pile is covered with the plastic and the ends and sides are buried in the trench and covered with earth to keep the pile air tight.

Officials at the universi y feel that winter food put up in this manner should keep without spoiling during the winter months.

The green fodder works rapidly under the plastic and can be used after two or three weeks if needed. The main idea is to have plenty of good winter feed for cattle in the fields where it is always ready to use.

Franklin said he will feed his dairy and beef cattle this way this winter to see hw othey compare with cattle that have their feed brought to them in the fields or are barn fed.

He plans to put up 10 such corn feeding stations and three or more of Millet or Johnson grass on the pastures to make winter feeding possible for his herd.

When the piles are covered a fence of rough wood is built around it to help protect the plastic from wandering cattle, sheep and other animals.

When the time comes to use the pile for feeding, a rack will be set up on runners with a series of openings so the cattle can put their heads through and feed themselves.

A check showed that they are getting 10 to 12 tons of corn per acre and between six and eight tons of grass per acre.

The piles of corn have about 85 tons each while the grass piles have about 50 tons each.

Plans to treat the grass to see just what will give the best results are under way with one getting heavy application of just plain water. One will be treated with chemicals and a third with Blackstrap to see which is the best for cost, and which one gives the best silage for growth and milk outpu..

The project was designed by Dr. D. L. Hill at the University to help farmers get the best possible feed with the least amount of handling for their cattle.

A check will be made on the Franklin farm to see how the program works and i s advisability for other area dairy and beef cattle men to use.

Cut-Out Switch Safety Feature

Properly located cut - out switches that will stop the engine in event of trouble can prevent serious damage to farm irrigation plants, says Kenneth A. Koch, assistant engineer, LSU Agricultural Extension Service, in a communication to J. J. Joyce, Jr., county agent. Irrigation power plants often must operate for a long period of time unattended, Koch points out, and automatic controls are needed to prevent engine damage in case of trouble.

One control recommended by the Extension engineer is a high temperature cut-out switch that will shut off the engine if the water cooling system temperature rises to the danger point.

Another control that may prevent serious damage is a cut-out switch on the main oil pressure line that will shut off the engine if the oil pressure goes below a safe level.

A third control is a pressure unit on the pump discharge line that will shut off the engine if there is a line blow-out or the pump loses its prime or fails to function for any rea

These cut-out switches operate on the ignition system of a gasoline engine. Koch points out, but there are controls designed for diesel engine use which shut off the fuel in event of trouble.

Grain Grading Schools Slated

Louisiana grain growers are invited to attend a series of grain grading demonstrations to be held early in September. The demonstrations, which will be staged through cooperation of the Extension Service, the Federal Grain Inspect or Service, the Cottonseed Crushers Association, and Louisiana grain handlers, will be held at Bunkie at 7:30 p.m. today; at Winnsboro at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, and at Tallulah at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Insect Control Is Big Business

The increase in immunity of boll weevils to the usual poisons poses new problems for growers and insecticide manufacturers. Entomologists poin out that if weevils become resistant to one poison, the possibility is that eventually they will become resistant to others.

Farmers henceforward must be prepared to make quick changes poisons and methods of application, some imes in mid - season. Manufacturers must be prepared to carry on continual research programs for development of new insecticides and must face the possibility that products developed at considerable expense may become obsolete after a relatively short time.

The LSU Agricultural Experiment Station, which first detected in Louisiana the resistant boll weevil, discovered that the resistance is hereditary in weevils, and recommended new control methods, has performed a signal service to cotton growers and the industry.

Many Entries In LaSalle Fair

JENA, (Special) "Some of the outstanding livestock in this part of Louisiana" will be seen at the livestock show scheduled Tuesday night, September 24, starting at 7 p.m. in connection with the annual LaSalle parish fair in Jena, it was announced this week by Bill Brasher, livestock division chairman.

Brasher reported that "an already large entry list" will feature "a truly outstanding" group of animals, both dairy and beef, "due to the fact that many pedigreed animals have been imported by LaSalle parish stockmen in the past year."

The livestock show will be held at the rodeo arena of the LaSalle Riding club, adjacent to the fair grounds in Jena, "with an outstanding livestock judge to be named."

Advance registrations for the show indicate "the largest number of animals ever to be shown at the parish fair" and Brasher added that "in addition to increased quantity, there has been an even greater increase in quality of animals to be shown."

CHECKING—Basil Doles, Richland Parish County Agent is checking the corn already piled to see if it is "working."

Conservation Highlights

According to a recently released report by the area office of the Soil Conservation Service the Lake Providence S.C.S. unit was one of three units in Northeast Louisiana that had an increase in production in the first half of 1957. The Lake Providence S.C.S. had a nine per cent increase in production

Well established, adequately maintained and properly managed pastures have proven one of the most effective conserva io- measures for soil and water, according to J. H. Durr, Soil Conservationist assisting the Northeast Soil Conservation District, Winnsboro, La.

Many farmers look on their pasture as a poor relation of their cropland. Pasture is no a weed patch or an exercise ground for livestock; it is a crop and when properly treated, can prove to be one of the most profitable crops on the farm.

Pasture is a basic protective measure in soil conservation. In many cases, land, which is subject to serious erosion when plowed and planted o row crops, can be established to improved pasture and the net returns per acre will be more than when used for row crops.

Proper Management

An improved pasture program is one of our most highly specialized farming practices and must be thoroughly understood before it can be carried out successfully. If properly managed no other me hod of providing food for livestock offers as great a return for the time and money expended as does the use of good pastures.

Some steps to be observed in the establishment and management of improved pastures are (1) Prepare land properly. (2) Use right kind and amount of fertilizer as de ermined by soil test. (3) A combination of adapted grasses and legumes to furnish grazing over the longest period of time is important. (4) Pastures and livestock should be controlled to prevent over grazing. (5) Weeds must be controlled by mowing or spraying.

W. B McLemore, Jr. of Gilber., reports excellent results from irrigation, and has started work to expand his irrigation by leveling additional land. Cotton corn, potatoes, and pastures are being irrigated on this farm.

Billy Duplissy has brought in soil samples from his farm to be sen to the L.S.U. Experiment Station in Baton Rouge for analysis. He is interested in the proper kind and amount of fertilizer needed for the establishment of improved pasture. Drainage ditches are under constructior on this farm this week. The work is being done by equipment owned and operated by the Northeast Soil Conservation District.

New Ditches

Jim Buie of Ft. Necessity, is using the district motor patrol to maintain drainage ditches on his farm. He also plans to establish several new ditches tha are being surveyed by Soil Conservation Service engineers.

Dr. N. D. Buie has completed smoothing approximately seven acres of land for more efficient drainage.

Lard Hog Has Had His Day

More meat, less lard. That about sizes up the hog's future. Why? Homemakers — those of you who keep the larder at home stocked — are definitely looking for more meat and less lard.

On the other hand, if you produce hogs, and you're going to select gilts or boars for fall breeding, choose the breeding stock that will bring you the best economic returns. Here are some characteristics to look for that are suggested by Agricultural Extension Animal Husbandman.

A. D Fitzgerald at Louisiana State University. Figure your sows to farrow and raise large litters. Try to select for rapid growth and low cost. Look for a hog that will put on a large proportion of lean cuts and less exterior and interior fat. On today's market the most valuable part of a hog is the four lean cuts — ham, loin, picnic, and Boston Butt. The belly section which produces bacon also is gaining favor. So, the balloon - shaped, lard - type hog is a drug on the market.

Associate Agronomist At Louisiana State Retires After 40 Years Service

T. H. Milliken, associate agronomist of the Agricultural Extension Serivce of Louisiana State University retired August 31, after 40 years' service in the educational field of agriculture.

He served 27 years as county agent of Morehouse parish; two and one-half years as Agronomist for the American Cyanamid Company; and he has served on the staff of Louisiana State University ten and one-half years as Associate Agronomist of the Agricultural Extension Service.

Milliken received his B. S. degree from the College of Agriculture of L.S.U. in June, 1917. He was appointed county agent for Morehouse parish August 15, 1917.

It has been his privilege to help and to see Morehouse parish's agriculture develop from poor soil and poor crop yields to soils of high fertility and high production. In 1917 it took four to five acres of cotton to produce a bale; farmers were importing into the parish thousands of bushels of corn to feed their horses and mules. No commercial fertilizer was being used in the parish. A few farmers were using cotton seed meal as a fertilizer. Soybeans were not known to farmers of Morehouse parish at this time.

Fever Rages

The Texas fever ticks were ravaging the cattle. Most of the livestock were grazing on the open range. Registered bulls, free of ticks, could not be brought into this section of Louisiana as they would die of tick fever. There was no sale for milk; therefore there were no dairies.

There were very few automobiles in the parish in 1917. The roads were all dirt and were practically impassable to travel after a rain. The farmers came to town mostly on horseback or in wagons. Standard equipment of the country agent was a spade, axe and chain which he carried with him at all times. It was necessary to use a ferry in working in certain sections of the parish as there were no bridges over Bayou Bartholomew. The schools were mostly one-room and were used as community centers.

Milliken had a big part in the progress that has been made by the farmers of Morehouse parish in the past forty years. They have improved the productivity of their soils and by applying improved practices, are producing up to two bales of cotton per acre, on their soils. Corn yields have been raised. With proper management and proper use of fertilizer farmers can produce from 50 to 75 bushels per acre Soybeans are gaining their rightful place in improving the fertility of the soil, and now a large acreage is being grown for oil.

The numbers of livestock are increasing rapidly in this section of the country. Farmers of this parish are receiving increased income from beef cattle, dairying, hogs, sheep and poultry. Timber resources also have contributed considerably to farm income of the parish.

Big Advantages

Milliken states the greatest source of satisfaction to him has been the part he was able to have in the development of the youth of the parish.

T. H. Milliken

The churches and schools have gone forward. New churches have been built in all the communities and old ones enlarged. This is for the betterment of the spiritual life of its people, he said.

More and better schools have been established until now every rural child of school age, both Negro and white, is being brought by buses to seats of learning.

Morehouse parish ranks at the top in the state with its system of good roads and bridges.

Milliken assisted in organizing the first 4-H Club, as well as the first community club. He did the educational work and cooperated with putting them into action, the Federal Land Bank, seed loans, crop production loans, Agricultural Adjustment Administration; Farm Security Administration; the Northeast Soil Conservation District; the Northeast Rural Electrification Administration; the Morehouse Farm Bureau Federation, the Parish Fair Association, Parish Cattlemen's Association, also he organized the Bastrop Livestock Auction; helped to organize the Morehouse Red Cross, the Bastrop Boy Scouts, the Bastrop Chamber of Commerce, and the Kiwanis Club. Was a charter member of the First Presbyterian Church of Bastrop, charter member of the Bastrop Kiwanis Club and member of the Masonic Lodge

Milliken has served on the staff of Louisiana State University for the past ten years as Associate Agronomist of the Agricultural Extension Service.

He has worked with the country agents throughout the state, mostly with soils and fertilizers and other agronomy projects. Since joining the staff of L.S.U. as Associate Agronomist of Agricultural Extension Service, he has been instrumental in increasing the tonnage of fertilizer throughout the state by supplying county agents with the latest research information that farmers who use high rates of fertilizer per acre would obtain higher yields from their crops.

With his assistance the acreage of soybeans and singletary peas have been materially increased in the state. It has been a gratifying experience to see the progress made in the agricultural development, throughout the state in the past 10 years. This has been brought about to a large degree by better soil management, better uses of fertilizer, better cultural practices, along with the greater uses of the proper insecticides.

Milliken states that it has been a source of real satisfaction to have been a member of the Agricultural Extension Service down through the years and to work with men and women who have dedicated their lives unselfishly to building a stronger agriculture in the state in order that farmers might be more profitable and homes more livable.

In 1946 he received a Certificate of Distringuished Service award for long and efficient service to the Agricultural Industry from the National County Agents' Association.

Slough In The Schoolyard

That a stagnant cess-pool-literally the cite of a city dump--remains on the grounds of the new North Monroe Junior High School is an indication of poor planning and coordination. School has begun in the new building with this menace to health and safety--a smelly pond and rotting refuse--still not covered. The News Star urges the city school board to request additional help from parish and city sources to deal with this emergency immediately.

There is no time to attempt to locate someone to blame for this delay. Indeed, the slough was there when the land was purchased and throughout the time it required for the building to be completed. Had some agency initiated action at the proper time, the stagnant mosquito hole could have been filled and sodded long before construction work on the new plant was finished.

But all emphasis, apparently, was placed on an early readying of the school in time for the fall classes. From the appearance—and smell—of the undrained lagoon, few persons would deem it ready for a school session. Dr. W. Carroll Summer, director of the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, has declared the slough a threat to health and safety and has recommemed that it be filled immediately.

To such a plea, officials from the parish, city and city school board estimate it will require from several weeks to "about 30 days" for the draining and filling operation. Reports state the job is technically one for the city school board to work out alone, but that assistance is coming from parish and city sources as a matter of courtesy.

There are indications that work on this all-important project takes place only on Saturdays. If this is true, it is a sorry commentary on the abilities of local agencies to take care of emergencies directly concerning them.

The News Star strongly recommends the filling of the slough in question be given top priority among present projects within the city limits. Daily--not weekly--filling and draining operations must begin at once. Agencies involved are sincerely requested to cooperate--not "pass the buck" to avoid criticism.

While it is an indicaton of bad planning to complete a school with part of a city dump on the grounds, it is much worse to delay now in covering it up.

There is a saying that Americans like to finish many enormous tasks "by Friday afternoon. While this philosophy was a poor one for ending the Koren War and other long-term operations, it certainly could be followed in the filling up and covering over of the slough at North Monroe Junior High.

Tribute Paid To Rep. Passman

Rep. Otto Passman of Monroe has been paid a high tribute by The Washington Evening Star in a recent feature article telling of the Fifth District Congressman's efforts to reduce foreign aid spending.

The Evening Star said, among other things, that the foreign aid battle in Congress produced a "new Mr. Big."

Here is what the article said in part:

"He is Otto E. Passman, a Democrat from Louisiana, whose stalwart opposition to Administration request for new mutual security funds caused President Eisenhower to suffer perhaps the greatest defeat of his career in the White House...

"Not only the Eisenhower prestige, but that of the Senate as well, hung in the balance in the last stages of the congressional debate.

"Until some time after 3 p.m. last Wednesday, the Louisiana representative . . . and his House colleagues had been insisting on a $2.3 billion final package. It then took all the pressure Speaker Sam Rayburn and other Democratic leaders could bring to push the House group back up to the final $2.77 billion figure (including reappropriations).

"He, Rep. Passman, had stood up to even more pressure a few weeks ago, when President Eisenhower called him to a special 6 p.m. conference with the House and Senate leadership.

"The President, Senate Majority Leader Johnson and House Minority Leader Martin occupied a sofa in the White House second floor sitting room.

"In a chair directly opposite them the President placed Congressman Passman. Flanking him in semi-circles sat other Congressional leaders, almost all of them publicly committed to the President's foreign aid program substantially as it was. Among them were a Who's Who of the Administration plus strategically important Democrats...

"Mr. Passman, ever conscious of his sharecropper beginnings, admits being a bit overawed. He sat silently as others expressed their support for foreign aid. When the President called on him . . . the weight against him was impressive.

"There is not a member of my committee," Mr. Passman began politely, "who would cripple or destroy your foreign aid program, Mr. President. But we will make substantial reduction in the appropriation based upon our understanding of the needs. Either I or you, Mr. President, have been given erroneous information about the program."

"Then Mr. Passman, who keeps on his desk a tabulation of his net worth down to the last pair of socks and shorts in his wardrobe, began reeling off from memory amounts the President had requested and comparing them to the amounts of carryover funds the Administration had not spent from previous years' appropriations.

"He clicked off the categories—military spending, defense support, special assistance, economic development. All showed a history of Administration overestimation of the amounts needed, Mr. Passman said, because much less even than the reduced appropriation was actually spent.

"In the fiscal year that ended June 30, he pointed out, Congress had cut the Administration request almost a billion dollars, and even then the Administration fell short by $500 million of obligating the money appropriated. It appeared to him, he told the President, that the administration had over-stated its needs last year by $1.5 billion.

"The Representative concluded his little speech with an assurance that his committee intended to ask the House to appropriate all the money necessary, in his committee's opinion, to carry out the program the President had projected. . ."

The Star continued its report:

"Mr. Passman, now 57, had come a long way from the tenant farm near Franklinton (La.) where he was born. His formal schooling ended in the fourth grade, when, at the age of 13, he left home to go to work in a Covington (La.) grocery store.

"He finally got a high school diploma by going to night school, later served in World War II as a Naval officer, and now heads a large successful firm at Monroe (La.) . . .

"He watches the taxpayer's dollar with the same . . . care that he does his own. . ."

Some Supreme Court Decisions Are Resulting In Dangerous Situations

BY FULTON LEWIS

WASHINGTON — On April 7, 1954, at 6 p.m., Andrew R. Mallory entered the basement laundry room of an apartment house where a woman tenant was doing her wash. He was masked. He overpowered and raped the woman, then escaped.

Later he was apprehended, gave a voluntary confession, was convicted and sent to prison.

The Supreme Court, in another of its hooligan decisions—based on a cultist fad in vogue among some jurists—has turned him loose on society. He cannot be tried again. The precedent means that indeterminable scores of other similar criminals, some of them even more dangerous, also will be turned loose. Some already have been.

Thus, the nullification of the court's sabotage of the FBI files in the Jencks case by last-minute legislation before congressional adjournment only started the over-all repair job.

A House Judiciary subcommittee under the aggressive young Louisiana Representative Ed Willis will spend the entire four months until the second session in January studying the destruction and preparing legislation to undo it.

The Mallory decision is so effete and superficial, however, as to deserve particular public attention.

Andrew Mallory was the half-brother of the janitor of the apartment house, and had been living with him for six months. Police picked him up the day after the crime at about 2:30 p.m., together with Mallory's two nephews, about his own age, who were also suspect.

At headquarters they were questioned briefly. Each denied the crime and each agreed to take a lie-detector test. There was delay in locating the polygraph operators, but the tests began sometime after 4 p.m.

In the meantime, the men had been left together, and food had been brought in for them. There was only one machine, and the tests had to be given in succession.

The two nephews were first, and both came through with clean hands. Mallory started his about 8 p.m., at 9:30 p.m. he admitted that he was the man, describing the crime in detail.

Two additional police were called in, and he retold the story to them, voluntarily. By 10 o'clock, officers tried to reach the U.S. commissioner, to arraign the prisoner and formally charge him, but the commissioner couldn't be found.

Physicians were called in routinely, to examine the prisoner. They found him in sound physical condition. He made no complaint that he had been molested, roughed, or otherwise maltreated. The prisoner's sole comment was that he had a "slight cold."

Still waiting for the U.S. commissioner, Mallory's victim was brought to confront him at about 11 p.m., and at 11:30 he began dictating a written confession, which he finished and signed at 12:30 a.m.

The Commissioner still had not been located so he was held in a cell until the next morning, when he was arraigned between 9 and 10 a.m.

The Supreme Court has always held, in the past, that the mere passage of time, between arrest and arraignment of a prisoner, does not in itself nullify a confession by him, unless there have also been threats, bodily punishments, enticements in the way of promises, or other duress.

There was none of it in this case, either charged, implied or suspected.

The mere fact that Mallory was held for what the court considers to be an "unreasonable time" was the ground on which they reversed the conviction. Neither the court nor the law defines the term "unreasonable."

The theory is that the police should not even be given the "time opportunity" to pressure a prisoner. Thus, the confession of Andrew Mallory, by all past Supreme Court decisions, was convicting evidence.

Little Rock School Situation Poses Serious Constitutional Problems

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Where the federal power begins and ends and where the powers of the states begin and end is dramatically illustrated in the conflict which has arisen in Arkansas.

For there is no right under the Constitution whereby the federal marshals or the federal courts can tell the governor of a state that he cannot call out state troops to maintain order and prevent violence.

The Constitution says that the authority of the United States shall be employed within a state to protect the people "against domestic violence" only when the legislature makes application or when the governor applies in the event that the legislature is not in session.

The preservation of order is thus a state function. For any federal marshals to be ordered into Arkansas to prevent the governor from carrying out his state responsibility in maintaining order would be a flagrant violation of the Constitution. It would be the proclamation of a dictatorship by the federal government.

The issue in Arkansas, however, is not merely the preservation of order or the prevention of domestic violence. The federal judge has issued an order the effect of which is to open the public schools to Negroes. His order, in effect, prohibits discrimination on the ground of race or color.

If the school authorities in Little Rock accept in good faith the fact that Negroes must be admitted when they apply, the federal court can punish anyone who actually interferes with the decision made by the school board. But what is "interference"? In the Clinton, Tenn., cases it was argued by the defendants that free speech no longer prevailed and that a court order abolished the right to speak. The judge apologized from the bench for the breadth of his order and endeavored to limit punishment to those who had actually interfered with the integration process in a direct way. The actual scope, however, has not been passed upon by the Supreme Court of the United States. It remains to be seen whether parents of white children meeting with other parents of white children to boycott attendance at a school constitutes "interference" or the exercise of a right of parents to choose the schools which their children attend.

The Governor of Arkansas has the right to determine in the first instance whether law and order prevails in his state. A federal court order banning segregation can continue to be in force, but its effective date of operation depends on when the state authorities decide that it is permissible to open the schools and allow the normal procedures to be operative.

The assumption that, the moment a state governor calls out troops to maintain order, he is violating a federal court order and can be held for "contempt?" is an exaggeration of federal power and would not stand up when taken to the higher courts. For if it were to be held by any court that the governor of a state cannot maintain order locally and must indeed close his eyes to possible violence whenever a federal injunction of any kind is issued, the entire state machinery could be disrupted. There would be no way of fixing responsibility for any tragic events that might follow.

Indeed, if federal marshals attempted to interfere with the exercise of state functions, they could be arrested like any other citizens under state laws on charges of interfering with such functions. There have been precedents in the past in which local authorities and federal officials have sought to impose charges of "contempt" on each other.

In the final analysis, when a clash occurs, the situation is resolved by a hearing in a higher court which has to deal with the questions of fact. If a governor, under the pretense of preserving order, were to impede the operation of a federal injunction, it would have to be proved in court that no violence was conceivable and that circumstances did not exist which could be considered as provocative of disorder. In the Arkansas case the federal judge has recognized the possibility that the troops may have been called out to block integration.

Until matters calm down and the legal question as to what does or does not constitute "interference" with "integration" is determined, no possible good can come from such impulsive action as is being suggested by some members of Congress here — namely, arresting the governor for contempt.

The issues are novel and the need for respecting the constitutional rights of the states as well as of individuals is a subject not for hasty action by the Department of Justice lawyers but for orderly litigation through the customary channels.

Monkey Consistently Picks Race Winners For Owners

BY HENRY McLEMORE

ROME — Many European papers gave front page play to the story of the monkey in Atlantic City which consistently picks race winners for its owner, and I wouldn't be surprised to read of a big run on zoos over here.

Horse players are the same the world over and if monkey handicappers are the way to beat the parti-mutuels, then you may be sure that their chattering soon will be heard on tracks everywhere.

No monkey will be safe, even one high in a jungle tree. The next thing he knows some man in a checkered vest and a hard hat will have him by the tail, and he'll be on his way to Santa Anita, Belmont or Newmarket.

Goo, goo, which is the name of the Atlantic City monkey, is by no means the first of the lesser creatures man has turned to for help in picking the winner in a $2500 claiming race. Nor is he the first to have a streak of luck and then peter out to where he is lucky to get one show bet home all afternoon.

I am not saying that Goo-goo is a certainty to cool off and that there'll come a day when his owner won't have so much as a peanut left to feed him. He may prove to be the exception to the rule and wind up getting a column in the Racing Form under some such head as "Jocko's Graded Handicaps." Or he may go on to having his own tout sheet — "Simian's Eye" — for sale alongside the roads leading to tracks.

More power to Goo-goo. Along with all other horseplayers I wish him the best. But — and this should be remembered by horseplayers before they tear off to a pet shop or are tempted to do a little monkey-napping from an organ grinder — the history of the turf is filled with animals who failed.

Not only animals, but birds, reptiles and even fish.

An old newspaperman friend of mine, Sid Sutherland, was on the way to getting rich with a hummingbird handicapper he had discovered on his ranch near Del Mar. Shown a racing card, the hummingbird would hover over it, wings going a mile a minute, and then he'd dive straight at a winner with his beak.

I know of three occasions on which he swept the card at Hollywood Park, and Sid and Martha were being fitted for yachting clothes when the hummingbird, for no apparent reason at all, started jabbing horses that weren't worth the cost of their saddle clothes.

The late Frank Craven, who was only a week-end horse player, used a bird-man combination for picking winners. He would have his chauffeur write the names of the horses on slips of paper and place them in the canary cage. The first slip the canary picked up was it.

The canary was unerring for a while, especially on stake races, but along came the moulting season and his gift went along with his feathers. His feathers eventually came back, but his luck never did.

I don't tell these stories in the hope of discouraging a horse player from buying a monkey. If I saw a bright-eyed one, and the price was fair, I'd be tempted to buy him. For after all, he'd more than pay for himself and his collar and chain, with just one 15 or 20 to 1 shot.

I wonder what his owner wants for Goo-goo? Any of you interested in forming a syndicate?

Union Head Petrillo Is Not Loved By Subjects

By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK — One afternoon in Chicago during the high consistory of the Serio-comic college of ethics of the AFL-CIO, Captain Dan Gilbert, now retired from the Chicago police department, sat in a suite in the midst of their movable Kremlin, reviewing barbarian days. During many years at the state's attorney's office this policeman was called The Fist. He had just walked 18 holes of golf, his middle was flat as a shingle, he was nimble and stringy, and he could lick a roomful of Reuthers at 70.

It wil' ever puzzle Captain Gilbert that Harry Truman stood for a news-picture with Jimmy Petrillo as Truman banged a backroom piano and Petrillo brayed on a trumpet at one of Petrillo's conventions. Truman might have shown more respect for the office. Captain Gilbert still has his doubts about the episode in which Jimmy quavered that he had been kidnapped and persons unknown got $50,000 out of the treasury of the musicians' union to replevin him. Today, you could easily raise $50,000 to reward any hoodlums who would promise not to let him go. Among his subjects, Jimmy is not beloved.

Browne and Bioff, George Scalise, Umbrella Mike Boyle and Max Pollock — Dan had boffed them all. One night during the world fair of '33 Pollock set fire to the chorus girls' panties in a tavern cabaret with a candle off his table to make them join his union. Under the name of Caldwell he reached the ripness of a noble career, chipping chumps for fees and dues in the Miamis. He died peacefully a year or two ago. The great unioneers of the racket had strewn millions of the toilers money in the hotels and dumps of his golden principality for years and years. A fine man. God rest him!

At the fair of '33, Pollock organized the streetwalks, waitresses and barmaids. For lagniappe, he organized the mule-faced lady, the India rubber boy and all the tattooed and deformed monstrosities of the late cash and carry Pyle's freak show.

The night of the incendiary incident at the tavern cabaret Dan scoured the town for Pollock. The next morning he charged into Pollock's office at Randolph and Wells grabbed his charter from the wall. It had been issued by the parent union of the retail grocery clerks at Lafayette, Ind. But Max still had a whole sheaf of charters. Mike Carrozzo, who began by organizing the chain-store system in the Colosimo circuit of brothels, had 32 at one time. The "paper union" is no invention of Johnny Dio. It was going well when the Kennedy brats were in diapers. The International president of the grocery clerks did not like to go into Chicago because Pollock had promised to break his leg. Max also had a charter for a waiters' and bartenders' local and was clipping the barmen at the fair for three months' dues one week before closing.

Charlie Briegel, the regional envoy of William Green, president of the AF of L, was a worried man, more honest than otherwise, who thought he just had to allocate charters around town among people who could "organize" non-union workers. Briegel's efficiency, was rated according to the number and power of the locals in his domain. Accordingly, he is issued a junk-trade charter for a union which presently fell into the hands of Paul Dorfman, the current protege of Jimmy Hoffa in a fascinating maze of unions and insurance rackets.

Gilbert warned Briegel and Green against Dorfman, but Dorfman moved in and only recently, more in sorrow than in anger, the ethical joint executive council moved him out. Willie Bioff, experimenting in prostitution, booze and unionism, had a junkmen's local under a floating charter from the teamsters in the early '30's. He also had a private union, AF of L, called the junkmen's brotherhood, complete with charter with gold seal, in frame. An old, bearded junk-scavenger was murdered in a junkyard for resisting the benefits of unionism and the charter went into seclusion until Green ordered Briegel to give it to Dorfman, who changed the union's name. Under examination by Congressman Clare Hoffman four years ago, Dorfman admitted that he had heard "newspaper talk" of a murder in the old union. He deplored murder.

The New York cops have never made the effort that Dan Gilbert did. At one time he had a locker full of charters. A New York cop would be busted for lifting a charter from a racket. La Guardia warned detective Jack Brickley, then of headquarters, to mind his own business when Brickley was about to arrest the gorillas who had slugged an old Irish woman in Yorkville with a blackjack in the dead of night for using Boyertown caskets in the family's undertaking rooms. Brickley quit the department soon after that.

Star Spangled Banner Is Most Often Played Tune

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The chances are that, if asked to name the tune played most often in public in the last 10 years, you'd name the wrong one.

The right answer is "The Star Spangled Banner."

"It is played at least 225,000 times a month on radio and TV stations alone," said Israel Diamond, a slender bald, 40-year-old accountant who is one of America's leading song statisticians.

Diamond is the jogging director of Broadcast Music, Inc. His job is to find out how often each of the 150,000-plus BMI songs are played so that the composers or publishers who own the copyright can be paid.

This task, little understood by the public is vitally important to the "June and moon" rhymers, a large chunk of whose income comes from the nation's radio and TV stations.

The work falls into two parts. A composer gets three cents from each station every time his tune is played over a TV or radio network. This is easy to figure out as the networks keep a complete list of every tune played.

Thus if you've written a tune entitled "It's Ha to Stay Straight When you Love a Wobbly-Hearted Girl," and a 150-station network plays it only once you'd get $4.50.

The difficulty lies in checking the country's 3,000 radio stations when they play music on nonnetwork or local programs. A tune played once on a local program nets the composer two cents.

Since it would be uneconomic to check them all, each month a scientific sampling is made of 100 stations. Each lists all tunes it played in that period.

Diamond and a staff of 50 logging editors then go over the lists and pick out the BMI tunes. Coded cards for the tunes are then put into data machines which electronically add and multiply the figures from the scientific sample to reckon the final payment.

One of the staff's small chores was to figure out a code name for the song, "You Two-Timed Me Once too Often." They finally came up with this result:

"U-2-X-Me-1-X-2-Often."

The log editors develop fabulous memories for song titles.

"I guess I can remember 35,000 to 40,000 songs offhand," said Ed Lecomte, 52, a former Broadway actor who has been a tune logger for eight years. "But no one in a lifetime could learn them all. There are millions of songs.

"No, I've never written one myself. I'm not very good at music, and anyway"—he smiled—"trying to find a new title would seem even harder to me."

He has learned some odd lore about songs. Such as that the BMI files list some 450 songs that start "I love," but only 36 that begin "I hate." One of the latter, probably written by a damyankee is, "I Hate You, Mississippi."

"Although 'love' is by far the word used most often in songs," remarked Lecomte, "religious interest also is showing up more and more in song titles. We have about 500 that start with 'Jesus.'"

Although BMI's staff also spot checks bands, ballrooms, football stadiums, restaurants, hotels, baseball parks and piped music systems to be sure their music isn't being pirated, more than 90 per cent of its income comes from radio and TV stations. It's two greatest money hits in recent years were "The Ballad of Davy Crockett" and "Tennessee Waltz."

After charting the performance of innumerable tunes, Diamond wryly admitted he sometimes is thinking of turning out a little ditty himself.

The title:

"I'm Loaded with Lovers—What I Need is a Friend."

'Well, Thank You...'

Ike Flabbergasted As 2 Women Suddenly Kiss Him

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower got kissed by two women he never had seen before. It happened in front of a lot of people, and he was flabbergasted.

He also chatted with a Philadelphia millionaire and the latter's wife.

He talked with them seconds after walking 25 feet from a spot where he gave his autograph to half a dozen folks.

Then he chucked the chin of a pretty blonde girl about 3 years old, and a moment later stopped to have his picture taken with another cute young lady—this one red-haired and 13 months old.

All those things happened within three hours yesterday at the Newport Country Club, where the President did something he rarely does—golfed on Sunday.

Ordinarily when Eisenhower goes on vacation the public seldom sees him. Here it's an entirely different story.

The Newport Country Club is on of the oldest and most exclusive in the United States. But the public is permitted to play the course some of the time.

And anybody — just anybody — can wander onto the course or into the clubhouse any time and stand almost under Eisenhower's nose as he golfs. Everyone who does, of course, is under the careful scrutiny of Secret Service agents assigned to guard the President.

If Eisenhower minds the folks moving in the way they have been he gives no indication. Actually, he seems to enjoy it. Yesterday the spectators gave him a big hand for a couple of fine putts, and a grin spread all over his face.

He had finished an 18-hole round and was leaving the clubhouse after changing his shoes when he got a big surprise. From the crowd of onlookers stepped Mrs. Edna Flint of Providence, R.I., and Mrs. Gorge Guthro, Cranston, R.I.

In a twinkling both women—both fortyish—had soundly kissed the amazed President.

"He was flabbergasted but he said, 'Well, thank you very much.'" the pleased Mrs. Flint reported. She and Mrs. Guthro were in Newport for a business convention.

STUDENTS RESIST —Students of the North Little Rock High School formed a tightly-packed block at the doors of the school to turn away six Negro students who had been enrolled earlier at the school. Just after the picture was taken, the Negroes were shoved down a flight of steps and out to the sidewalk where city police broke up the altercation. (AP Wirephoto.)

Woman Injured In Crash; Husband Charged By Police

A Yakima, Washington, woman was injured and her husband booked on two counts after the vehicle in which they wer traveling collided with another on Highway 80, seven miles west of West Monroe. None of the occupants of the second vehicle received injuries.

Mrs. Derrill L. Syferd received slight bruises about the face and a possible fractured nose when she was thrown against the dashboard of the small vehicle driven by her husband. Syferd was charged by state troopers with reckless driving and causing an accident.

The Syferd vehicle ran into the rear of an automobile, driven by Bertha Mae Roberts, Negro, of McNary, Arizona, who had stopped for a school bus. Both vehicles involved in the accident were headed east.

The school bus, belonging to the Ouachita parish school system, was headed west and had stopped to pick up children going to the Calhoun schools.

many requested their transfr to all-Negro schools.

School officials had expressed hope for peaceful desegregation.

They called on parents to send their children to school with assurance they would be safe. Segregation leaders urged parents to keep the children at home and go themselves as pickets.

126 Eligible

Under plans approved by U. S. Dist. Judge William E. Miller, Nashville schools are beginning desegregation with first-graders today. Further desegregation plans must be submitted to the court by Dec. 31.

The new first grade zoning made about 126 Negro children eligible to enter formally all-white schools.

More than half have asked and obtained transfers to Negro schools under provisions of the plan. Only 13 Negroes registered for mixed classes at five schools in advance of school opening.

About 150 segregationists gathered in a drizzling rain yesterday and sat in their cars to listen to John Kasper and other White Citizens Council speakers urge all-out resistance to 'desegregation.

Does Not Apply

The speakers urged parents to go to school as pickets and have their children at home.

A spokesman for a more moderate prosegregation group, the Tennessee Federation for Constitutional Government, issued a statement reminding parents that Tennessee's compulsory school law does not apply to 6-year-olds, the age of most first-graders.

Jack Kershaw, a Nashville real estate man and vice chairman of the federation, said, "Parents should keep their children out of school if they're under 7.

Day School

"As a matter of fact, all parents should keep their children out of school... Parents can send their children to a private school or a day school and I don't see why each parent can't declare their home a day school."

Nashville is the second city in Tennessee to mix the races in state-supported secondary schools. The first was Clinton, Tenn., where desegregation of the high school was marked by repeated violence a year ago.

"Highest winds are estimated to be about 150 m.p.h. over a small area near the center," the advisory said.

Hurricane force winds spread 75 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south of the storm's eye while gale force winds pushed outward 125 miles in the northern semicircle and 75 miles to the south.

The advisory said Debbie is expected to maintain its present west-northwest course for the next 12 hours.

Kefauver has to make up his mind whether to run for re-election to the Senate in 1960, seek the party's presidential nomination again or make a stab at both. Friends say he is putting off any final decision.

The presidential nomination looks very tempting to a number of Democrats now. Eisenhower won't be running. Republicans are squabbling among themselves. These Democrats think 1960 may be the year in which the voters decide it's time for a change again.

North Little Rock

stepped forward and said, "I think we ought to turn our backs on that man working for the New York nigger papers," and pointed at Dr. Fine.

Only a few followed the suggestion. "Turn your back!" an unidentified segregationist screamed. "Go on, turn your backs!"

Basically there was no change in the scene at Central High. New troops, who relieved those sent to the school by Gov. Orval Faubus last week, stepped in when the crowd became restive.

The incident at North Little Rock was handled by city policemen who stepped in quickly to rescue the Negro boys after the first rush. Officers did not attempt to help them into the school however.

When the superintendent tried to lead the Negroes into the building "where we can talk," a burly high school youth pushed to the fore and stood stolidy in front of the advancing Negroes.

"If you want to stay in this school you'd better get out of the way," Wright admonished him sharply.

Rather Get Out

"I'd rather get out," the boy said. He was cheered by the crowd who echoes his reply.

The superintendent gave up the attempt and told the Negroes, "nothing can be gained at this time by you boys presenting yourselves again."

One of the students asked "is this an official denial?"

Superintendent Wright said: "This is an official denial." Then he read an order from the school board saying integration would not begin at this time. North Little Rock, unlike Central High School, is not under court order to proceed with integration. It had planned voluntary partial integration, but post-poned action after the Central High trouble.

Shakes Head

No new word came from President Eisenhower's vacation headquarters at Newport, R.I., today.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty was told of the incident while he and Eisenhower played golf. Hagerty shook his head but made no comment.

These were the spot developments in the struggle of Gov. Faubus with the federal court.

Last night in a nationally-televised interview from the Governor's Mansion, Faubus reaffirmed his stand to keep troops at Central High School to prevent violence which he said was imminent.

He has maintained that blocking Negroes from entering Central High as the federal court has directed is simply a by-product of his efforts to preserve the peace, that he is no in conflict with the federal government and is not acting as a segregationist.

Fear Violence

Faubus said in answer to a question it appeared that the present impasse could be broken only if the federal government receded from its position that integration must start immediately.

Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann of Little Rock, who has called Faubus' fears of violence a political hoax, said early today that the governor's stand is tantamount to rebellion and his words constitute "seditin."

Newsmen watched the U.S. District Court today for signs that the government's next move in what Faubus has called a "legal checkergame" might come from Judge Ronald Davies whose integration order has been blocked by the use of Guardsmen.

Faubus Insists

Arkansas federal bench temporarily, has twice ruled that integration must begin forthwith and once denied the school board's request that his integration order be postponed to allow tension to ease.

Protect Negro

Faubus' use of the National Guard was described last night by Mayor Mann as amounting to rebellion. Mann called Faubus' claim that threatened violence moved him to act with the guard a manufactured emergency with political overtones.

The governor said his actions were "to protect the Negro as well as the white children and to avoid a very clear and present danger of a race riot." He said he knew Arkansas Negroes would quickly forget the part he had played in their progress in the state and knew he would be condemned by their leaders "even though I acted in their interest."

Faubus said "maybe Negro leaders and white integrationist leaders and even Federal Judge Davies are willing to sacrifice the lives of a certain number of people in this community in order to take one more step toward final and complete integration. Let that be their philosophy, it is not mine. The price is too high and the danger too great."

Negro Leader Attacked By White Mob

BIRMINGHAM (AP) — A Negro pro-integration leader was attacked by a group of white men today as he sought to enter several Negro students in all-white Phillips High School here.

The Rev. F. L. Shuttleworth, one of a group of Negro parents who had sought to enroll their children in white schools earlier, was beaten about 10:30 a.m. when he drove to the school.

After Schuttlesworth was hit several times, he made his way back to his automobile and drove off. Three white men were taken into custody by police.

Shuttlesworth, who is president of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights, told bystanders he had come "to enter these children in schools" as he parked in front of the downtown high school.

The children remained in the car as Shuttlesworth got out.

Jim Atkins, news director of television station WABT, said Shuttlesworth was "jumped by about 15 or 20 men" and knocked down several times.

A nearby policeman also was hit, Atkins said, when sought to end the beating. The children remained in the automobile until Shuttleswor h managed to get back to the drivers' seat and leave.

864 Polio Shots Given In August

The number of polio injections given in August is the lowest since the first of the year, according to Dr. W. Carroll Summer, parish health director.

A total of 864 Salk injections were given during the month. Of this number 413 were first injections; 296 were second and 155 were third injections.

The 864 shots given in August brings the total number to 35,174 given in Ouachita parish since Jan. 1.

Dr. Summer urged that parents bring their children to the health unit or take them to their family doctors for Salk polio injections.

Passage of the measure was the major action of the session. It also was a significant victory for the President even though his original proposals were rewritten by the Democratic-controlled Congress to remove or soften some of the far-ranging provisions.

Aside from the broad new powers to enforce voting rights, the bill would:

Establish a six-member presidential commission to make a two year study in the civil rights field.

Provide for a new assistant attorney general to head and strengthen the civil rights division in the Justice Department.

Repeal a Reconstruction era law authorizing a president to use troops to enforce court orders in civil rights cases.

Low first cost with concrete

Federal funds will pay 90% of the building costs of the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways. So it is only logical to pave the sections in this state with the very best paving material—that's safe, smooth-riding and durable concrete. Concrete usually costs no more to build than other types of pavement designed for the same traffic load—especially important on the new roads of the Interstate System designed for 1975's heavy traffic.

Don't be misled by incomplete statistics. Where lower cost is reported for other pavement, it is usually because it was designed for lighter loads and shorter life, or because the extra cost of subbase preparation and grading was not reported as part of paving cost.

Louisiana's major cities along U.S. 80 such as Shreveport, Monroe and Ruston will be relieved of traffic congestion for years to come—even to 1975—with modern expressways, as the massive interstate highway program unfolds. These highways of the future not only will alleviate traffic congestion in the cities, but will provide safer and more comfortable driving in rural areas, for generations to come.

"I know I need more Life Insurance, but how can I afford it?"

HAVE you ever had this thought? Have you ever wondered how your wife could keep the family together if something should happen to you? This question faces most men while their children are growing up.

We believe that you will find the answer to this question in the Metropolitan Family Income Plan. This plan is designed to furnish the extra income needed to take care of your children until they have finished their education or are getting started in life.

The plan combines regular insurance with a special income provision which can be fitted to your particular circumstances and family needs. Here are some of its important features:

1. You choose the amount of monthly income needed—$100 a month, $200, $300 or more.

2. If you should die at any time within 20 years—while your children are growing up—the Metropolitan Family Income Plan will provide the income you arrange to be paid to your family each month for the remainder of the 20 years. Then the face amount of the policy will be paid in cash.

3. If you should live beyond 20 years, when the income provision is no longer in effect, your family will still have continuing protection for the face amount of the policy.

For your own peace of mind, why not get the complete details of the Family Income Plan from your Metropolitan Representative? He will be more than happy to explain it to you, and demonstrate that . . .

Brooklyn Site For Stadium May Be Ready

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's big question as to the future home of the Brooklyn Dodgers became even more involved today with a group of Los Angeles businessmen offering to purchase the National League club and move it to the West Coast city.

Elliott Evans of Los Angeles said he and associates were willing to top by half a million dollars the five-million-dollar offer made for the club a few days ago by New Yorker Louis E. Wolfson.

Evans made public his offer a few hours after John Cashmore, president of the borough of Brooklyn, wired President Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers to "please hold everything" and to tell Los Angeles to "go find itself another team."

Cashmore advised O'Malley in a telegram sent to Vero Beach, Fla., that legal obstacles barring a proposed stadium in the Flatbush section of downtown Brooklyn might possibly be removed. O'Malley flew to Vero Beach yesterday after a six-day vacation in Wyoming.

The Brooklyn city official told O'Malley the decision regarding a new stadium on the site desired by the Dodger head is due shortly. O'Malley repeatedly has requested city officials to condemn land on the Flatbush and Atlantic Avenue site for the building of a ball park. He has said he is willing to invest more than six million dollars to build the stadium.

Wolfson made his five-million-dollar offer with hopes of keeping the Dodgers in the New York area.

But Evans said, "We want them in Los Angeles even without O'Malley."

Evans, who said he heads a company interested in purchasing businesses, declined to say how far negotiations with the club have advanced or whom, if anybody, he has seen.

"But we have made the offer," he said. "And I hope to have an announcement by Tuesday or Wednesday."

Evans said he and his associated want the Dodgers in Los Angeles because they consider purchase of the club a good business investment and they believe the club belongs in the West Coast city.

Patton Favorite To Win Amateur Golf Title

By LEO H. PETERSEN

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UP)—Billy Joe Patton, always within a whisper of winning the big ones tees off in a field of 200 golfers today rated as the man to beat for the U.S. Amateur championship.

The 35-year-old lumber dealer from Morganton, N.C., moved into the favorite's role in this wide open tournament when he shot a 2-under-par 36-34—70 over this historic old country club course during final tune-up rounds Sunday.

Coming off a brilliant victory in the Walker Cup matches at Minneapolis, that final workout established him as the favorite in a field which includes six former champions, but not the defending titlist, Harvie Ward.

Ward On Sidelines

Ward, who won the crown in 1955 and again in 1956, has to sit this one out. He is under a year's suspension from the U.S. Golf Assn. for accepting expense money illegally.

Happy go-lucky Billy Joe runs into Bobby Knowles Jr., a 43-year-old insurance broker from Aiken, S.C., in his first-round match today. It is one of 72 matches starting at 8 a.m. EDT with 56 of the entrants drawing first-round byes.

Chuck Kocsis of Royal Oak, who lost to Ward in the finals last year; Joe Carr, the former British Amateur champion from Ireland; Reid Jack, the present British Amateur king; Joe Campbell, the ex-Purdue basketball star who hails from Knoxville, Tenn.; Charlie Coe, who won this tournament back in 1949; Dale Morey, another U.S. Walker Cupper; and many others were given a good chance to take it all.

All members of the U.S. and British Walker Cup teams also were among the competitors.

When today's firing ends, the 72 winners and the 56 who drew first-round byes will scramble through a second 18-hole round on Tuesday.

There will be two 18-hole rounds on both Wednesday and Thursday, with the four survivors meeting in 36-hole semifinals on Friday and those winners clashing in the 36-hole final round on Saturday.

First Negro

Althea Gibson Is Undisputed Queen Of U. S. Tennis

By ED CORRIGAN

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Three short years ago, Althea Gibson was so discouraged that she was ready to give up tennis and join the Women's Army Corps.

Today the angular Harlem girl rules an undisputed queen of the courts, the first Negro ever to win a national championship.

"I was ready to chuck it all in those days," Miss Gibson said. "I was mixed up and seemed to be getting nowhere in the game. Now, of course I'm glad I didn't join the WACs."

She should be. Yesterday, on the polished center court of the West Side Tennis Club, she gave a supreb exhibition of craftsmanship to defeat Louise Brough 6-3, 6-2 in the final. The victory culminated a dream of seven years for Miss Gibson.

While Althea's triumph was expected, the result of the men's division was a distinct surprise. Unseeded Mal Anderson whipped his Australian teammate Ashley Cooper 10-8, 7-5, 6-4 in the second all-Australian final in two years.

Cooper, the champion of Australia, was seeded No. 1, but he never was in the match against the skinny Anderson. It was the first time in the memory of veteran officials that an unseeded player has won this coveted title.

Miss Gibson's victory over Miss Brough, a 34-year old Beverly Hills, Calif., campaigner, came in the form of sweet revenge. It was in 1950 that she met Miss Brough in a second-round match. She was within two points of winning when a violent thunderstorm erupted. The match was completed the next day and Miss Brough won it.

BASILIO BREAKS CAMP

Lulu Perez, Bell In Televised Fight Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—Lightweights Lulu Perez and Bobby Bell will settle their dispute tonight in a return widely-televised 10-round fight at St. Nicholas Arena.

They fought to a draw at St. Nick's on Aug. 19. Perez of Brooklyn was leading at the midway mark; but Bell of Youngstown, Ohio, came on in the second half and finished the stronger.

Each fighter and his supporters claimed he was the winner.

America's Davis Cup Hopes Appear Ending

By STEVE SNIDER

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP) — America's Davis Cup hopes dwindled to ground zero today with Australia plainly in the driver's seat again after 10 days of superb tennis in the U.S. Singles championships.

Two ancient traditions fell Sunday after 77 years when Althea Gibson of New York became the first Negro ever to win a U.S. grass courts crown by out-steadying veteran Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-3, 6-2, and cowboy Malcolm Anderson of Australia became the first unseeded player ever to win the men's title.

It was Anderson's straight set triumph over Australian champion Ashley Cooper, 10-8, 7-5, 6-4, that cast gloom over U.S. cup hopes because Anderson strictly was a bolt from the blue.

He pulverized America's leading player, Dick Savitt of South Orange, N.J., en route to the final and was equally potent against Cooper, who previously had licked him five straight times.

With Savitt already withdrawn from the U.S. team and top-ranked Ham Richardson a doubtful traveler because his wife likely would not be permitted to go with the team, the United States has only Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., who was trounced by Cooper, and Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, who lost to Flam.

Miss Gibson completed her series of world tennis conquests in precedent-setting fashion by trimming Miss Brough with the loss of only five games to round out her grand slam of Wimbledon and U.S. championships, a feat accomplished by only five other players in history.

The 30-year-old Miss Gibson, scoring on her eighth try, was almost as nervous as the 34-year-old Miss Brough as they fought through the early games before a gallery of 10,000. But when Althea ran out a 4-1 lead in the second set, Miss Brough, winner in 1947 and four-time champion at Wimbledon, began unsuccessfully to fight back her tears and then it was only a matter of time before Miss Gibson walked over to pick up her championship trophy from Vice President Richard Nixon.

Later, Althea rounded out her big day by winning the mixed doubles with Denmark's Kurt Nielsen over Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., and Bob Howe of Australia, 6-3, 9-7.

COMING CHAMPION — Don Goodroe, standout South Carolina high urler from Albany, Ga., gets a few pointers from his coach, Weems Baskin, a former record holder. Goodroe covered 120 yards in 14.5 last spring. The six-foot, six-inch sophomore began in the hurdles as a 1953 high school student.

At 'The' Club

U.S. Amateur Winners Predominately In 30's

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UP) — They're playing mathematical roulette as the U.S. Amateur golf championship gets under way today and the odds favor the teeside gamblers who are thirty-ish.

The late Bob Gardner won this event the first of two times in 1909 when he was a 19 year-old Yale undergraduate. Yet times change and when Congressman Jack Westland took it in 1952 he was 47.

But the average age of the champions in the post-World War II era has been 35 and they'll have a hard time dusting off this elder contingent when the pitch and putt party proceeds over the hallowed grounds of what the local gentry refer to as "The" Country Club.

They call it such because, local rumor has it, this was "the" first organized country club in "19-hole" history.

This is the fifth national event they have staged at "The" Country Club and a gaffer hasn't survived yet. Francis Ouimet, golfingly as important hereabouts as Paul Revere, became the first amateur ever to win the U.S. Open when he flattened such immortals as Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in 1913. Francis was only 20 at the time.

Lawson Little copped the U.S. Amateur over these acres in 1934. "Old Cannonball" was only 24. And, in the two previous amateurs held at "The" Country Club, ancients Bill Fownes and Jess Sweetser were a couple of youngsters.

So, fellow putt palpitators, keep your optics on such of the younger brigade as Jim Tom Blair of St. Louis, 26, and amateur golf's longest hitter; 25-year-old Hillman Robbins of Memphis; and such 21-year-olds as Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Jim Hiskey of Pocatello, Idaho, and Ward Wettlaufer of Buffalo. Nor should you even overlook 18-year-old Don Essig of Indianapolis or the two 17-year-old "babies" of the brassie brigade, Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, and Larry Beck of Kingston, N.D.

If form holds, then the victor may develop from among 36-year-old Dale Morey of Indianapolis; 35-year-olds Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., Irishman Joe Carr of Dublin and Arnold Blum of Macon, Ga.; 34-year-old Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va. or 35-year-olds Reid Jack of Scotland, the British champ, or Charley Coe of Oklahoma City.

Texas League Closes With Dallas Leading

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Texas League race closed Sunday.

Dallas wound up with a 4-0 victory over Oklahoma City to establish a record for road games. The Eagles, who won 102 games while losing 52 for the season to close out five games ahead of Houston and take the pennant, won 55 and lost 23 on the road. That bettered Fort Worth's mark of 53 in 1949 and also was the highest percentage—.705—by six points.

Houston was second, San Antonio third and Tulsa fourth.

Keith Little of Houston led in home runs with 30 and Spencer Robbins of Oklahoma City in runs batted in with 94. Tommy Bowers of Dallas was the pitching leader with a 20-8 and Larry Sherry of Fort Worth topped in strikeouts with 146.

Crackers Take 16th Pennent From Little Rock

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The jubilant Atlanta Crackers waved their record breaking 16th Southern Assn. pennant today after voting profound thanks to the weather, to Little Rock lefthander George Brunet and to their own rookie mound ace Don Nottebart.

The Crackers capped one of the most dramatic stretch fights in the league's long history yesterday by following the nervy Nottebart to a 10-2 victory over Chattanooga while Brunet was wresting the flag from Memphis' clutches with a sparkling one-hitter in a 2-0 Little Rock victory.

This combination of events gave Atlanta the pennant by half a game on the last day of the season. Memphis finished second and Chattanooga slid to fourth behind the Nashville Vols who were rained out of their date with Birmingham. Mobile assured itself of fifth place by blanking New Orleans 6-0 behind Bill Dailey's two-hitter.

Tonight the playoffs begin with Chattanooga at Atlanta and Nashville at Memphis.

Weather played a strong supporting role as Atlanta broke a tie with Los Angeles and became the most prolific flag winner in the minor leagues. First, a rainout last Aug. 14 cost Memphis a chance to play a 154-game season. The crackers got all of their games in and the extra one made the difference. Then yesterday, the Chattanooga weather was wet but not quite wet enough to prevent the game. Had it been washed out, Atlanta and Memphis would have finished in a deadlock, necessitating a best-of-three playoff series.

Atlanta led the league for only 18 games and had to climb into first place six times before nailing down the bunting. Memphis led for 83 games and Nashville for 45.

Tag Wrestling Bout Set For Kallio's Arena Tonight

George Curtis and Jack Curtis, Jr. face bad boys Jules LaRance and Leo Wallick tonight in a 4-man tag team bout in the main event at Kallio's Arena tonight.

The other bout on the regular Monday night wrestling card has Earl Guess of Jackson, Mississippi meeting the giant Mysterious Link in the semifinal event.

The tag team bout will be over the 90-minute or less route with 2 falls needed to win. Guess and the Link will have an hour to swap holds and two falls are needed to win that one too. Allen "Sailor" Parker will officiate the night's matches.

Both highly popular with Monroe fans, the two Curtis boys will be favored over the LaRance-Wallick pair but they'll have a scrap on their hands. Both George and Jack, Jr. have faced LaRance in one type of bout or another and Jack, Jr. fought Wallick here last week.

George, however, has never met Wallick in the local ring and the boys are not likely to become friends at first sight tonight. Jack Jr. had to be carried from the ring by his father last week after taking a vicious going over from Wallick.

If Jack, Jr. is not up to the job of squaring accounts, Uncle George should be. The fast Vicksburger is one of the top grapplers going around here and can count his losses on his fingers and have a few left over.

Guess will have his hands full with the Mysterious Link. The Link gave LaRance a licking last week in his local debut and impressed all with his size and grappling skill. Standing over six feet and weighing around 250 lbs., the Link is a dangerous man to tangle with.

Guess may have the edge in height tonight but he'll be badly outweighed. However, he's itching to whip the Link and unmask him. The Link says that anybody who beats him can unmask him.

Swartz Drops Liberty 5-2 In Little Eight

Liberty defeated Woodlawn and Swartz beat Claiborne in semifinal playoffs to reach the finals.

1957 Football Race Unaided By "Results"

By UNITED PRESS

If you're looking for an "early line" on the 1957 National Football League race, you won't find those scrambled exhibition results much help.

Monday morning experts could ponder today such items as the second loss in four games for the world champion New York Giants and an impressive victory over tough Baltimore by previously winless Washington as typical of a full week end of pro gridiron play.

In Sunday games, the Redskins ended a three-game losing streak by whipping highly-touted Baltimore, 24-14; the Chicago Bears bounced back from a loss to the Giants to hand the winless Philadelphia Eagles their fifth straight defeat, and the Pittsburgh Steelers handed the Detroit Lions their first loss, 20-14.

On Saturday, the San Francisco Forty-Niners downed the Chicago Cardinals, 27-21; and the Green Bay Packers surprised the Giants, 13-10. On Friday night, the Los Angeles Rams beat the Cleveland Browns, 20-14.

TIGERS RECALL PRESKO

DETROIT (UP)—Joe Presko, a 29-year-old relief pitcher, looked forward today to a return to the bigtime. The Detroit Tigers recalled Presko from their Charleston, W.Va., farm club of the American Association, where the former St. Louis Cardinals pitcher has spent the last two seasons.

Toronto Readies For Semi-Finals With Miami

By UNITED PRESS

The Toronto Maple Leafs, International League pennant winners for the second straight year, prepared today for their semifinal playoff round against Miami.

Toronto, pre-season favorite to win the crown, defeated Rochester, 4-3, Sunday to retain a half-game lead over the second-place Buffalo Bisons. Toronto and Buffalo each won 88 games, but the Bisons, who wound up their regular season with a 6-4 triumph at Montreal, lost 66 times, one more than the Leafs. Toronto played one less game than Buffalo because of the cancellation of an earlier contest.

Richmond and Miami, the other first division teams, both bowed on Sunday, the Vees at Columbus, 12-4, and Miami at Havana, 8-3. Richmond will play Buffalo in the other semifinal round starting on Tuesday.

Eighth-inning homers by Bill Wilson and Mike Goliat were the big blows as Toronto came from behind to defeat Rochester and win the pennant. Humberto Robinson went all the way for his 13th victory.

Giants, Dodgers Play Last Game At Polo Grounds

NEW YORK (UP)—No one cried in his beer and no one sang Auld Lang Syne, but the Giants and Dodgers revived a flock of golden memories after facing each other for the last time at the Polo Grounds.

A crowd of 22,376, made up mostly of sentimentalists who perhaps wanted to tell their grandchildren that they had seen the final game between the two clubs at the Polo Grounds, watched the Giants fashion a 3-2 victory in the interborough wind-up.

Players on both sides couldn't help but recall some of their classic battles of the past as they peeled off their uniforms. Most, of course, cited Bobby Thomson's pennant-winning homer for the Giants in the 1951 playoff.

BADEN-BADEN, Germany (UP) — A brief moment of glory was over today for Rupert Huber, a 26-year-old German tennis player. ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (UP)—Phil Hill, Santa Monica, Calif., outdistanced two other "iron men" Sunday to win the "Road America 500"—the first 500-mile sports car race in the nation's history.

Hill, 30, an eight-year racing veteran, drove a 3.8 litre Ferrari an average of 81.4 miles per hour to whip second-place finisher Carroll Shelby, Dallas, Tex., by nearly one lap and by two minutes and 40 seconds.

Third place went to Ed Crawford, Northfield, Ill. Hill, Shelby and Crawford earned their "iron men" labels by driving the entire 125 laps alone.

Boggs In London

LONDON — UP — Rep. Hale Boggs was in London today to attend the opening of the Internation Parliamentary Union with a group of American delegates.

The senators and congressmen flew to London airport aboard two U. S. Navy planes.

The conference delegates will discuss three main subjects, the refugee problem, the measure of control of governments by parliaments, and the stabilization of world prices.

Planes Patrol Cuba's Coast

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Warplanes and Navy ships today patrolled Cuba's long coastline to guard against rebel landings from Mexico.

Reports reaching here from Mexico said Cubans there were preparing to send supplies and men to the rebels of Fidel Castro holed up in the mountains of eastern Cuba.

It was from exile in Mexico that Castro came last December with 81 men to challenge the government of President Fulgencio Batista. They were beaten in battle and scattered to the mountains.

Since then Castro's band has been reinforced and has waged guerrilla warfare against the government.

Some Cubans believe the rebels are preparing another blow soon at Batista's government to follow the bloody and futile attempt by 400 men last Thursday and Friday to seize the naval base city of Cienfuegos in south central Cuba.

By, for, and about WOMEN

MARY HAWORTH

Mother Of Three Wonders If She Should Complete Training

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband, a minister, and I were married during my second year of nurse's training. Our original plan was for me to become a registered nurse, looking towards a future in the mission field. Missionaries' wives have to be technically trained to serve along some line—teaching, nursing, etc.

However, the arrival of our first child (we now have three) modified these plans, and I left training 11 months short of my degree. We have an extremely happy life together, but my husband still feels that we must respond to a call from the mission field and I want to uphold him in this.

I love nursing, missed it greatly when I left, and have had a lifelong desire to work in the field of medicine. Also I want to qualify for Christian service abroad. In brief, I would like very much to finish nurse's training, plus one more semester—to qualify for a degree in nursing education. This I could put to excellent use in the mission field, or here in the States.

Husband Hopes To Be Missionary

Unfortunately this year of training would necessitate my absence from the children. The eldest is now three years of age; the second, 15 months; and the baby is four months old. The hospital is 12 miles distant and I could be home only one day a week, plus occasional weekends. My mother would willingly care for the children during hours when my husband is occupied with church duties.

The separation would be terrifically hard on me, even though I know they would be in good hands. I think perhaps I should place their welfare above my own desire to finish nurse's training. I have long felt that a woman with a career is bound to neglect in some way her family, no matter how dearly she loves them . . .

My husband several years my senior, is understandably anxious to know whether he should continue to look towards service abroad or whether he should content himself here. Since wives of missionaries must be technically qualified, as I've said, my decision will largely decide our future. I hope your insight will shed new light on our situation.

K.Y.

Get On Beam Of God's Will

DEAR K.Y.: Inasmuch as you and your husband are committed Christians, in the sense of sharing a willingness to do God's work—to spend your lives as instruments in His service—I should think the present "snafu" ought to be referred to His attention. I think you ought to try to ascertain His will, as to what to do.

Easier said than done, I grant. I suppose all of us have puzzled at times, unsure whose will was prodding us—our own, or God's. In such case, how can we be sure? I believe proof that we are on the right path is found in exceeding peace of soul—which always attends the Spirit-led choice.

As it happens, some generous soul long since sent me a digest of his systematic approach to discerning God's will, year after year In effect he says:

FIRST get your heart or mind in such a state of quiet that it has no pressing preference in the matter. Nine-tenths of confusion starts right here; and nine-tenths of the difficulty is overcome when we really are ready to do God's will, whatever it may be.

SECOND: Don't base your decision on your feelings, sensations or impressions. The Will of God always squares with the Word of God. If the Holy Spirit guides us at all, He does it according to the Scriptures, never contrary to them.

Circumstances Are Indicative

THIRD: Take into account Providential circumstances—that is, the situation in which you find yourself. This consideration often plainly indicates where your duty lies, in God's scheme of things.

FOURTH: Through it all, pray and reflect and read the Scriptures, until you arrive at a deliberate judgement, to the best of your ability. If your mind remains at peace in this decision after some further petition, you may proceed with confidence.

The author of this program of guidance says: "In trivial matters, and in transactions involving most important issues, I have found this method always effective."

As a deliberate decision is acted out, we make possible a double-check on whether we've chosen aright. If "all things work together for good," with everything falling into place—if the plan seems to "open up"—then we've cause to feel that we are on the beam of God's will for us. M.H.

Wardrobe Future Bright For Desk Job Or College

This fall holds promise of one of the most colorful seasons sports wear has experienced in many a year. The fashion analysts note that whether a girl is college bound or set for a desk job, her wardrobe future is bright and bursting with fashion newness.

From top to toe there is a change. The taut little silhouette that has characterized fashions during the past few years gives way to a new ease and suppleness that has a distinct sportswear character. For example, the pullover (or overblouse), a direct outgrowth of the sweater influence, steps to front and center. Characterized by its easy - waisted lines, it is a fashion reflected at all price levels.

The pullover is often distinguished by large cowl effect collars, bateau - like necklines or low pocket placements. These young tops go to all lengths to capture the fashion spotlight and are shown reaching just below the waistband, brushing the hipbone or pulled slightly below this point.

The distinguishing look of the pullover and coordinating skirt is lean, even when pleats identify companion skirt. In these instances, designers keep pleats pressed and trim, thus maintaining a slim look.

Back of all this easy - fit that is taking over is the Chanel look. In jackets, it takes shape in styles that are boxy in effect but taper in at the hip or in shorter versions cut along the same casual lines. The short jacket is a popular top for both slim or full skirts. Newest shape for fall is the modified cocoon, developed with folds starting from the neckband. Large emphatic collars and puffed sleeves are other top width expressions.

These jackets are always part of a coordination plan with a suit look the ultimate goal. Blouses, therefore, become significant and are an integral part of this well put - together costume plan. Pebbley crepes and silks are the designers' choice for these, with dressmaker treatments such as yokes, draped necklines, bows and deep cuffs fall's fashion signatures.

Soft blouse necklines are moving in on the dictatorship of the tailored shirt this fall. While college and career girls will still wear their classic favorites, blouses that individualize pants and skirts offer a refreshing change.

Campus coats, continue to be a basic part of college girl's wardrobe. Shown in a broad variety of fabrics, coordination is the new important factor with linings and collars of these coats matching pants or skirts for a costume effect.

Also top drawer fashion news and in line with the late 1920s and early 1930s influence in sports clothes is the return of long hair furs. Sporty in character, such oldtimers as red fox, cross - dye fox, badger and raccoon now trim tweed or shetland suits and coats.

As far as sweaters are concerned, the big news is in shetland styles that are "overgrown" but never sloppy. They are pulled low over slim pleated skirts or tapered pants, or worn as an undershirt with cloth blouses. One bulky type knit pullover on top of another is also an incoming theme.

Installation Of Officers At Joint Meeting Of Bayou Vista Garden Club And The Lakeshore Garden Club

A joint meeting of the Lakeshore Garden Club and the Bayou Vista Garden Club was held Thursday, September 5, in the United Gas Bldg. on Louisville Ave. Mrs. W. H. Taylor, Jr. served as hostess, assisted by Mesdames F. E. Gates, M. D. Cannon, and C. O. Hanna. The white-covered table was very attractive, featuring at one end a punch bowl encircled by a wreath of tulle and fern studded with tiny white chrysanthemums, balanced on the opposite end by a colorful arrangement of dahlias. A graceful spray of ivy, interspersed with dainty chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece. Mrs. Taylor served at the punch bowl and was assisted by Mrs. Gates and Mrs. Cannon.

Mrs. J. P. Kuykendall opened the meeting with prayer after which officers for the new Bayou Vista Garden Club were installed. Mrs. P. A. Colvin conducted the very colorful and impressive ceremony. Each officer accepted his responsibility of office with a colorful aster, which was displayed against a background of greenery to form an artistic arrangement. These flowers, significant of the important role of each office, were supported by a crystal container representing the Louisiana Federated Garden Club. The water used in the container was symbolic of God's gift of life and growth. Participating in this ceremony were: Mesdames R. W. Gregory, Jr., president; J. E. Tripp, vice-president; Warren Alford, treasurer; Ruel S. Hurt, reporter; Frank Marchefski, historian; Roy Scalia, parliamentarian; and Wilford Smith, program chairman. Mrs. W. H. Taylor, president of the Lakeshore Garden Club, accepted in behalf of her club the responsibility of assisting the new club in every way possible.

After the installation exercise Mrs. Clint Hanna introduced Mrs. Eugene Scott as guest speaker, who chose as her topic "Fun with Flowers." She brought out many interesting facts regarding the different types of corsages and the proper etiquette associated with them. She, then, gave a very enlightening and detailed demonstration on the preparation of all kinds of corsages, after which she presented the presidents and program chairmen of both clubs with a beautiful corsage.

The two clubs held separate business meetings. Important business of the Bayou Vista Club included the discussion of this year's program agenda by Mrs. Wilford Smith; and Mrs. R. W. Gregory, Jr. gave a prepared list of articles and by-laws, which were adopted by the club.

Members of the Bayou Vista Garden Club present were: Mesdames R. W. Gregory, Jr., Warren Alford, Evans Larkin, J. E. Tripp, Pat Mitchell, Spurgeon Welch, Jr., Ruel S. Hurt, C. A. McKenzie, Frank Marchefski, Roy Scalia, Malvin Brantley, Max Waite, Wilford Smith, Burley Orville, W. C. Johnson, V. D. Guess, Marshall Hobgood, Harold Shepherd, William Roche, and Jack Harrington.

Attending members of the Lakeshore Garden Club included: Mesdames J. H. Alford, M. D. Cannon, J. B. Evans, Sr., J. K. Ezell, F. E. Gates, Clint Hanna, J. P. Kuykendall, Gordon McMorris, Jody Rodden, F. R. Stickley, Leonard Taylor, R. L. Taylor, W. H. Taylor, Jr., J. B. Evans, Jr., and C. T. Welker.

ON THE FASHION BEAM

Bermuda skirt: This fashion, launched last year, is booming for fall, especially for the back to school crowd. Called "skorts," "skirmudas," "pleatie pants," "kilties," and a few other names, it's essentially a skirt the length of Bermuda shorts. It may be a kilt concealing solid - color bloomers or shorts, or may be shorts with a front panel for the look of a skirt. Usually done in plaid, it's shown with leotard or knee socks, is especially good for the slightly hippy girl who likes the freedom of shorts without their revealing lines.

TEEN-AGE MAIL

Feels Service "Stigma" Hinders Finding Nice Girl

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I have been reading your column for a long time and I have a few questions I hope you can answer. I have been stationed at an air force base for a year now. During this time I have tried to meet a nice girl to go with. I have gone to the U.S.O. but most of the girls there are going steady.

I have met a few girls at a skating rink but just as soon as they find out I am in the service they don't want anything to do with me. I don't see why people around here look down on boys in the service — we can't help it because we're 'in.' This is supposed to be a friendly section of the country but I don't think it is. I will be looking for your answer —if you answer letters from boys who are in the service. W.G.

Dear W. G.:

Since my own son is in the Navy I, too, feel quite strongly about this problem. Too many people condemn ALL service men for the misbehavior of a comparative few. However, if I had a teen-age daughter I would surely want to know something about the boys she dated and, as you know, that is not easy to do with service men.

I think you have been approaching your problem wrong. You see, the girls you meet at a skating rink probably wouldn't dare invite you to their homes because their parents would accuse them of being pick-ups, which, in a sense would be true.

It seems the best way for you to break the ice and meet a few nice girls is at church. Go to the church of your choice and introduce yourself to the pastor. Tell him something about your 'qualifications' and background and ask if he will help solve your problem by introducing you to one or two nice girls. Good luck

Hits at Unfairness

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

We are a couple of teen-age girls and we both love our parents but we think they are very unfair at times. We have the same problem; for example — if one of us breaks a dish or spills something they make a terrible fuss about it. But, if THEY do it, it's all right because there is no one to scold them in their own home. We're not saying it is okay to go around breaking and spilling things but we certainly don't do things like that on purpose. This is only one of many problems and it does seem unfair.

Sally and Chris

Dear Sally and Chris:

If a girl or boy is careless about handling dishes and food and is continuously breaking or spilling things I can easily understand why parents would become aggravated.

However, if a youngster is not careless but does have an occasional accident, I too, think it is unfair for parents to rant and rave about it. Such accidents happen to all of us. When they do a person usually feels badly enough without someone adding to the discomfort by being disagreeable about it.

Are You Getting The Most Out Of Your Wardrobe This Season?

By MARIAN RAHL

A designer who has made a study of casual clothes for country-side and campus, believes clothes should be selected for their versatility. Casual coordination, color-simplified dressing with separates, "what to wear where," are stressed in each collection and fall, 1957, finds his formula more successful than ever.

For country club and campus wear, well - cut Bermuda shorts and perhaps an argyle pullover sweater, are suggested. This same sweater without a blouse or shirt underneath may be teamed with a pleated jersey skirt for after-game celebrations. Spectator interest in field events — football, hockey, etc., — and you change to slim pants in check or plaid and a big cardigan wool sweater.

The collection of interchangeable fashions includes linen shirts, the two - piece wool jersey dress with semi - fit overblouse and pleated skirt. Wool sweaters in solid colors and argyle patterns have interesting necklines — a pullover with wide open line or V shape to show shirt collars; heavy cardigans with rising turtle - like necklines. There are slim twill skirts, tapered pants in twill and houndscheck wool with hold-down straps.

The romantic lines of the poncho liven the sportswear picture. It is flattering and practical in all-weather wool. Worn with skinny slacks or sheath dresses and skirts, it has a look that might return to favor — it is taken from the country squire look. A short coat can fill the need for a suit if it matches a slim skirt; it is excellent for motoring and can be worn with pants at a country destination. Irish linen, twills, jersey and woolens stress red, black and tobacco. White, natural, beige, light gray, charcoal and checks in black and tobacco, black with white and red with tobacco make it easy to mix and match all these clothes.

First Of Series Of Courtesies Are Extended To Miss Mary Ann Rose, Bride-Elect Of John Allen Bernard

LAKE PROVIDENCE — The first in a series of courtesies being given for Miss Mary Ann Rose, whose marriage on September 14 to John Allen Bernard, will be a social event of this area, was a luncheon at a local restaurant.

Hostesses were Mrs. Frederick Hall Schneider, Jr. and Mrs. Joe M. Mott, Jr. The honoree chose from her trousseau a model of mushroom linen worn with avocado accessories. Her corsage of yellow flowers was a gift from the hostesses.

A charmingly arranged handkerchief tree formed the central decor of the luncheon table, with each guest presenting a handkerchief to Miss Rose.

Those present to enjoy the delightful luncheon with the honoree and the hostesses were Miss Virginia Hider, Miss Allein Harkey, Miss Katherine Pittman, Miss Catherine Barfield, Mrs. C. A. Rose, Mrs. Anna R. Cox, Mrs. King Trieschman, Mrs. Frank Voelker and Miss Betty White of Greenville, Mississippi.

Conversational Hour

Another party given in honor of Miss Rose this week was held at the home of Mrs. C. R. Evans on Lake Street. Sharing the hostess honors with Mrs. Evans was her daughter, Mrs. W. M. Knobles.

In the receiving line with the two hostesses were Mrs. C. A. Rose and the honoree, Miss Mary Ann Rose. For the occasion Miss Rose wore a black striped winter cotton, designed with a boat neckline. Her corsage of feathered mums was a gift from the hostesses.

The refreshment table was overlaid with an ecru Italian cut work cloth, and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and fern in a low vase. Candelabrum with tall pink tapers were placed at either side of the flower arrangements. The appointments of the table were in silver, with trays of sandwiches, macaroons, nut cakes, cheese straws, party biscuits and mints arranged for the pleasure of the guests.

Punch was served from an heirloom punch bowl and was presided over alternately by Mrs. J. C. Bass, Mrs. J. P. Brown, Mrs. O. S. Brown, Mrs. Anna R. Cox, with little Miss Anne Knobles assisting.

Afternoon Party

Continuing with the prenuptial parties for Miss Mary Ann Rose, popular bride - elect, was a lovely afternoon party given by Mrs. J. P. Brown and Mrs. O. S. Brown at the J. P. Brown home in Lake Providence.

The informal gathering was attended by approximately 40 guests. The honoree was gowned in a lovely model of grey peaude -soie, fashioned in princess style with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. Her corsage of yellow feathered mums was presented by the hostesses.

The refreshment table was overlaid with an embroidered linen cloth of white, with lace inserts. A bowl of yellow fugi mums adorned the table on which a profusion of hors d'oeuvres was placed. Sherry was served from a Bohemian glass decanter. Assisting with the courtesies of the evening were Miss Virginia Hider, Miss Katherine Pittman, Miss Catherine Barfield and Miss Allien Harkey, all of whom will be Miss Rose's bridal attendants in the forthcoming wedding.

Morning Coffee

Mrs. Frank Voelker, Sr. and Mrs. Anna R. Cox entertained at the Voelker home on Lake Street with a morning coffee in honor of Miss Mary Ann Rose, whose marriage to John Allen Bernard will be celebrated on September 14.

The honoree was chic in a navy blue sheath of cotton. Her turnover collar was decorated with touches of white, and her corsage, a gift of the hostesses, was of white feathered mums.

A large number of guests called during the morning hours to enjoy the occasion with the hostesses and the honoree. Mrs. J. M. Hamley presided at the silver coffee service. Sandwiches, hand biscuits and cakes were also served.

The reception rooms of the Voelker home were decorated with vases of mums, with special attention being centered on a unique arrangement of white clematis surrounding a miniature bride and groom, lighted by the glow of many candles burning in silver candelabra.

TRIBUTE TO BEAUTY — Marilyn Elaine Van Derbur, the 20-year-old blonde from Denver, Colo., happily displays telegrams of congratulations after winning the title of Miss America of 1958 in Atlantic City. For the statistically-minded, Marilyn is 5 feet, 8¼ inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, and measures 35-25-36 from top to bottom. (AP Wirephoto)

'Miss America' To Complete Her College Education

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—What is Marilyn Elaine Van Derbur, the new Miss America, like?

The 20-year-old blonde, green-eyed beauty from Denver, Colo., told newsmen at a breakfast press conference on the beach yesterday that:

Her main interest is completing her college education in music, and she plans to use the $5,000 scholarship that goes with the title toward that goal.

She'd like to work in music or on the stage for a year or two after college and hopes to get married when she's 24. After marriage, she wants to continue her work in music.

She likes to swim, train and ride horses, ski, and adores tailored clothes. Her favorite colors are green and blue.

She has no steady boy friend, thinks singer Perry Como is tops, admires singer Jane Froman and likes steaks medium-rare.

She admits to having been a "brat" as a child and said she used to spy on a sister's parties. She thinks the father should be the head of the family.

As might be expected, Miss Van Derbur thinks the Miss America pageant offers wonderful opportunities to a girl.

The dimpled beauty queen, who stands 5 feet 8¼, weighs 130 pounds and measures 35-25-36, was crowned Saturday night by the outgoing Miss America, Marian Ann McKnight of Manning, S. C., before a nationwide television audience and a crowd of 20,000 in Convention Hall.

Although she got only an hour's sleep after the Coronation ball, she looked fresh and radiant as she greeted newsmen and photographers the following morning.

"I feel wonderful," she said.

Immediately after the press conference, she was whisked off to New York City to start her reign.

The new beauty queen, a University of Colorado junior who had her debut last year, has three sisters.

Her father Francis S. Van Derbur owns a group of mortuaries and runs an insurance business in Denver.

First runner-up in the contest was Miss Georgia, Jody Elizabeth Shattuck. The 20-year-old blue-eyed blonde from Atlanta won a $3,000 scholarship.

Red Warns U. S. Of Annihilation

MOSCOW (UP)—Marshal Constantin Vershinen, chief of Russia's air forces, warned Sunday that the United States and its Allies would be wiped out in World War III.

Vershinen, in an article in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, said the Soviet Union was prepared to go into action at a moment's notice with nuclear weapons, intercontinental missiles and submarines equipped with rocket missiles with atomic and hydrogen bomb warheads.

It was the second Soviet warning within two months of Russia's war potential. Last July Deputy War Minister Alexander Vasilevsky said the United States faced a grim fate if it attacked Russia.

Vershinen said cities like New York, Chicago and Detroit were virtually defenseless against the latest Soviet weapons. He admitted the Soviet Union might suffer from attack from the West, but he said, "we shall suffer losses, but these losses will be smaller than those of a country with a dense population and its industry concentrated in restricted areas.

"This particularly refers to the Western European countries and the United States," he said.

Vershinen's warning apparently was set off by the reported declarations of Western leaders that the Soviet Union would be destroyed in any new war but the United States would be saved by its remoteness from Russia's airfields.

Demand For Domestic Help Outstrips Supply

NEW YORK (UP) — The supply of domestic servants in America has come a long way in the past five years. But it still can't catch up with the demand.

Census Bureau figures estimate that some two-and-ahalf million persons, mostly women, now help keep house for busy Americans. This is an increase of about 800,000 maids, cooks, nursemaids, butlers chambermaids, laundresses and housekeepers since 1952.

Still, the demand far outnumbers the supply and this circumstance is making the domestic's job easier and more comfortable.

It is no longer enough merely to advertise in a newspaper for household help. You've got to present a generous, benevolent proposition.

A help wanted ad in an Omaha, Neb., newspaper states: "Cook. Good hours, no Sundays, holidays. Not heavy work. Top wages, beautiful room with private bath, new air-conditioned home."

Work Sounds Easy

This private room-bath-television air conditioner pattern is repeated in ads appearing in newspapers across the nation. Aside from listing the creature comforts, employers also are making the work sound easy.

Such phrases as, "very light housework," "no ironing," "Other help for heavy cleaning," "plain cooking," "good treatment" and, of course, "call collect" are almost routine in current ads for domestic help.

Occasionally, an employer will seek to attract a servant by offering the use of a car on the day off.

As for salaries, a cook now can draw $250 to $300 a month. A butler can earn $400 a month, plus room and board. A married couple that sleeps in can earn up to $500.

The government has levied a four-and-a-half per cent social security deduction for each domestic earning more than $50 a quarter.

Most employers pay the full deduction rather than risk irritating the servant by asking her to chip in with half.

More Suburban Living

Employment agency officials and government sources agree that one major cause of the increased demand for household help is the trend to suburban living. A new home generally calls for a part-time cleaning woman, it seems. And there's the increasing number of working wives. They go to work in the morning and hire someone else to do the housework.

5 Persons Die In La. Mishaps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five people died in accidents over Louisiana during the weekend. All died in traffic, but officers said the cause of death of one was electrocution.

James L. Guidry, 21, of Baton Rouge, was reported dead of electrocution on arrival at a Baton Rouge hospital yesterday. State troopers said his car went off a road on a curve 15 miles west of Baton Rouge, hit a utility pole, and contacted wires.

Mrs. Ruth Baker, 67, of Haines City, Fla., died in a headon collision yesterday on the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway. Troopers said the driver of another car, R. S. Williams, 31-year-old Bogalusa Negro, apparently fell asleep and swerved into the one Mrs. Baker was riding.

Mrs. Harold Smith, 24, of New Orleans, died Sunday of accident injuries. Officers said her car collided with another on the Chef Menteur Highway Saturday night. They said Charles Moore of Pearl River, driver of the other vehicle, may have been traveling in the wrong lane.

Mrs. Howard Massie, 22, of Maplewood died in a wreck on Highway 90 outside of Lake Charles Saturday. Troopers said she was trying to make a U-turn in the highway.

Earl Fontenot, 30-year-old Mamou man, died Saturday night of injuries received in a wreck near Vidrenne. His car failed to make a curve, officers said, and ran off the road and overturned.

Adenauer Stock Hiked By Threat

BONN, Germany (UP) — Russia's new blunt warning that Germany can be reunited only on the terms laid down by the Kremlin will lend added support to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the forthcoming crucial West German general elections, political observers said today.

The observers said the attack on Adenauer's pro - Western policies by Moscow will backfire on the Communists and others who have been advocating adoption of a more neutral position between East and West. They said the Soviet note should convince the "fence-sitters" among West Germans that Adenauer has charted the correct course.

Moscow assailed Adenauer in a harshly-worded note delivered as the campaignfor the Sept. 15 general elections entered the final week. The note was handed by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to West German Ambassador Dr. Wilhelm Hass in Moscow Saturday night. It was in reply to a communication from the Bonn government last May.

The Soviet note reiterated that direct negotiations between East and West Germany is the only avenue to reunification. It rejected again the Western proposals for reunification through free and secret elections.

The Russians also charged West German rearmament is a threat to European peace. And that the Bonn government was leading Germany "along a dangerous path."

Adenauer is seeking re-election for a third term on a platform calling for close alliance with the United States and other free Western nations as the best hope for recovering German unity.

The 81-year-old chancellor also insists that West German rearmament is essential to this program.

Girl To Play 'Anne Frank' Sought By Producer Stevens

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Master movie - maker George Stevens launched a worldwide search today for a girl to play the title role in "The Diary of Anne Frank."

He is looking for the "living counterpart" of the martyred teen-aged heroine who wrote the touching story of her life of hiding from the Nazis.

"I'm not trying to build a star," says Stevens. "I'm not looking for an actress, either. We hope to find a girl between the ages of 13 and 18 with the basic qualities of Anne Frank.

"She must be wistful, thoughtful and precocious. Her personality should be at one appealing, sympathetic, gay and optimistic."

Temple Types Out

Stevens, who made "Giant" and "Shane," is not looking for a miniature glamour girl. Shirley Temple types are out.

The director asks everyone who knows a youngster who fits the qualifications to write him in care of 20th Century - Fox Studios, Hollywood. Studio representatives will attempt to check out every lead.

"Our search is especially intensive in Amsterdam (where Anne wrote her diary), New York and Tel Aviv," he added. "But we are not limiting the search.

"A speech accent is all right, but the girl must speak fluent English."

Stevens went on to say that he will distribute photographs of Ann to give people an idea of the type of girl he wants. He admits, however, that physical resemblance to the original Anne Frank is secondary.

Decided Against Stars

"We considered stars for the role in the beginning," he said, "but decided against it. Susan Strasberg (who played the role on Broadway) and Natalie Wood were among them. Now we definitely want a girl who has had no acting experience at all.

"Every intelligent human being is capable of playing one role to perfection. Just as it is said that everyone has one great story to write.

"It is quite likely the girl who plays the role will never appear in another movie."

Stevens traveled to Amsterdam earlier this summer to talk to Anne's father, Otto Frank. Both men agreed that casting the lead role is the single most important element of the film.

"We won't turn a camera until we find the right girl," Stevens concluded. "And when I say 'right,' I mean the one girl in the world who is perfect for the role."

Adlai Distressed At Faubus Action

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai Stevenson says he is distressed and surprised at Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas for using National Guardsmen to prevent school integration in Little Rock.

Stevenson, in a nationally televised interview yesterday, said Faubus has supplied "grist for the Communist propaganda mill" by his anti-integration actions.

"I was deeply distressed and surprised by my friend Gov. Faubus' action in this matter," Stevenson said on the news show Face the Nation.

"It was not necessary to preserve peace and order (and) will be grist for the Communist propaganda mill."

The twice-defeated Democratic presidential candidate termed "inexplicable" the Arkansas governor's action and said ordering out the National Guard increased tension in Little Rock.

Stevenson said he does not advocate the use of force to bring about compliance with the Supreme Court's school integration order.

But he added that he "applauded and congratulated" President Eisenhower for his statement that he would do everything in his power to see that the Constitution is upheld.

The former Illinois governor said news of the Arkansas integration situation will have a "serious and sad impact" on the colored nations of the world, especially in racially taut South Africa.

Report Made On Tire Sale Of Air Force

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP) — Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) reported yesterday the Air Force put a surplus label on $245,000 worth of new auto tires and tried to sell them at cut-rate prices.

Johnson, the State Democratic leader, said the Senate Defense watchdog subcommittee which he heads blocked the sale. He said the Air Force finally turned the tires over to military units that needed them.

The proposed surplus sale was brought to the subcommittee's attention, the Senator said, by "a cost-conscious taxpayer who is an automotive tire dealer."

Johnson's Preparedness Investigating subcommittee reported that the 3,548 unused tires, which cost the government $245,122.50, were offered for sale as surplus at Burtonwood Air Force Depot, Warrington, England.

Johnson said other defense and government agencies were at the same time ordering some of the same tires from manufacturers.

The Senator said the tire dealers tip enabled the subcommittee to cancel the surplus sale, scheduled for Nov. 5, 1955, through Air Force Headquarters here.

He added that the Army, which buys all tires for the armed services, later asked for 1,808 of the tires and the Navy 582. Another 195 went to other overseas Air Force installations and 963 were held for the foreign military assistance programs, he said.

Johnson said subcommittee action prevented sale of the tires "to foreign firms for a fraction of their value" and cut back procurement of additional new tires to replace them.

The Senator said the surplus tires deal offers "a case history" on failure to observe or enforce existing regulations covering disposal of military surpluses.

Johnson said the subcommittee needed two years to complete its investigation because of a delay in reports by Air Force Headquarters.

Dudley C. Sharp, assistant secretary of the Air Force, said the delay was necessary to permit a complete investigation by the Air Force inspector general. He added this "failed to uncover any criminal conduct on the part of any of the personnel involved."

HURT IN CRASH

EL DORADO — (AP) — A Sulphur Springs, Tex., man was recovering today from slight injuries he received when his light plane crashed on the outskirts of El Dorado. James D. Masters said he was forced down by fog, and he crash-landed instead of attempting to land at the local airport.

Ethel Merman Refuses To Pose With Benny Goodman

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Notebook: Temperament problems are keeping things lively for the producers of the forthcoming play, "Saturday Night Kid," with Shelley WWinters and Joseph Weisman the chief battlers. He walked out on the very first rehearsal after an artument with Shelley, but at present writing is back in the company. . . . The Gene Nelsons' reconciliation plans have faded. . . . The big mystery along Video Valley: Why did Ethel Merman refuse to pose for publicity pictures with Benny Goodman, her co-star on the "Crescendo" spectacular? No one can recall a feud between them, but when photo-taking time came, La Merm said no very firmly and the maestro picked up his clarinet and went home. . . . Ernie Kovacs and Edie Adams have definitely decided to play Las Vegas together after she leaves "Lil' Abner" in November. Most of the material for the act is all set, and they have several offers from which to choose.

Saratoga may have been "shut tight" for gamblers during the recent racing meeting, but at least for one afternoon it was wide open. The barbecue tossed by the jockeys' agents featured an impressive crap game, whirling roulette wheels and an army of slot machines, with no curiosity evinced by the law. Actually, an aftermath of the party may result in a small gang war up there; the gent who put in the slot machines was supposed to cut in two other operators on his profits—but still hasn't.

Long Island socialites are wondering if another newsworthy marriage might not follow the Pam Curran — Bob Sweeny nuptials. Woolworth Donahue and Clarice Leggett appeared mutually enraptured when they spent the other evening at Herb Carthy's Bowden Square and Marianne O'Brian Reynolds, his former flame, was nowhere to be seen.

Arthur Miller is still undecided about the merits of a musicalized version of his "A View From the Bridge." Marilyn, however, is said to be enthusiastic about the project, so the chaps writing the score are hoping she'll exercise the fatal influence.

One of the nation's top novelists is $100,000 in debt to her publishers. . . . Those ads for "Jeanne Eagels" really seem to be ballyhooing "The Pajama Game." . . . Milton Berle left New York for his engagement at El Rancho Vegas accompanied by an entourage of 12, including three gagwriters.

Bob Sherwood can be found almost any night at 11 hanging around the stage door at "Bells Are Ringing." The lure is Phyllis Borge, one of the dancers in the show. . . . President Eisenhower is rounding up the best public relations thinkers in the Republican Party to try to evolve a formula for winning back public support before the 1958 Congressional elections. The Democratic victory in Wisconsin indicates that if the warring factions don't get toge her soon they will be fighting for an empty shell.

When Edward G. Robinson tours in "Middle of the Night" his best girl, Jane Adler, will go along as a member of the staff. . . . Denise Darcel is the proud possessor of a new white Thunderbird, but there's a slight hitch. She can't drive.
